LAW BODY ASKS FOR $25,000 TO SURVEY COURTS

Rockefeller Foundation to Donate Equal Sum, Letter States.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE WOULD HANDLE TASK

Congestion, "Bargain Days" and Dry Act's Effects Subjects of Study.

(Associated Press.)

A plea from Chairman Wickersham, of the Law Enforcement Commission, for the raising of $25,000 to carry on the commission's incompleted survey of the Federal courts was made public yesterday at the White House.

In a letter to President Hoover attached to what was called "a progress report on the study of the Federal courts," Mr. Wickersham indicated this sum, if raised, would be turned over to the American Law Institute.

He said the commission had found it "inexpedient to apply to Congress" for more funds to carry on the work. The Rockefeller Foundation, however, he said, had donated half of the $50,000 needed on condition that the other half be raised and the American Law Institute step "into the shoes of this commission."

Hope to Find Basic Trouble.

The lengthy and technical progress report to which this letter was attached said the survey hoped eventually to get to the root of such problems as congestion, "bargain days" and the actual effects upon the courts of prohibition and other laws.

It was prepared by a committee of eight nationally known legal scholars, under the chairmanship of Dean Charles E. Clark, of the Yale Law School. Other members were Justice Roberts, of the United States Supreme Court; President Robert M. Hutchins, of the University of Chicago; Dean Orrin K. McMurray, of the University of California Law School; Prof. E. M. Morgan, of the Harvard Law School; Dean Thurman W. Arnold, of the Law School of West Virginia; Dean Henry M. Bates, of the University of Michigan Law School, and Prof. Henry R. Medina, of the Columbia University Law School.

Included as a sample in the progress report was an extensive tentative analysis of criminal cases in Connecticut during the three years ended June 30, 1930.

Thirteen Districts Chosen.

The committee reported that time and financial limits would make it impossible to collect similar figures for all Federal courts. Thirteen districts were chosen as representative, it was said, for the collection of civil and criminal cases. Explanation was given that the volume of prohibition cases was such that only one in ten would be tabulated in seven of these districts.

"If congestion appears," the committee said, "there will be many clues as to the major or contributing causes—whether it is in the judicial machinery itself, in the increasing scope of Federal jurisdiction, or in the growing social and economic problems of the day.

"The data may indicate inferentially the presence in various districts of the 'bargain day' practices in criminal cases about which so much comment has been made. This might be indicated by high percentages of guilty pleas in certain types of cases combined with the imposition of rather light sentences."

Promise No Panacea.

The committee warned, however, that although the data will be valuable in mirroring court activities, the figures "will not of themselves produce a panacea for all of the defects in the Federal judicial machinery."

In collecting the data, the Wickersham Commission added in an attached statement, supervisors have been named in the thirteen districts

Hoover, Doak Study Relief for Jobless

"Survey of Probable Needs to Be Undertaken for Administration.

Luray, Va., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—President Hoover interrupted the quiet of his week-end at his Rapidan camp today, to discuss unemployment relief with Secretary Doak. The conference with the labor secretary followed a similar discussion with John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross.

The administration's program provides for a survey of probable winter needs, with direct relief to come from state and county agencies. Secretary Doak is expected to submit a report to the White House after conditions have been weighed.

The road being built into the proposed Shenandoah National Park area, which will pass near the Rapidan camp was discussed by the President with luncheon guests including Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads, H. K. Bishop, roads bureau engineer, S. H. Marsh, engineer for the Virginia State conservation and development commission, and G. Freeman Polack, land owner in the vicinity, were other guests.

Washington's Letter Tells Yorktown Aim

Stroke, President Wrote to Webster, Intended Primarily to Revive Expiring Hopes and Languid Exertions of U. S.

(Associated Press.)

Anxiety lest reenactment of the surrender of the British army of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, Va., to American and French troops might offend British sensibilities apparently overlooks the true historic significance of that battle.

In Washington's own conception, the stroke was aimed primarily "to revive the expiring hopes and languid exertions of the country" in that dark year of 1781.

Washington outlined to Noah Webster in 1788, seven years after the Yorktown victory, the objectives he sought in that engagement. Webster had asked such an explanation in view of public controversy of the time as to whether originally it had not been planned to lay siege to British forces in New York.

In his hurried letter in answer, Washington paints a vivid picture of the cares that constantly harassed him and of the strategy to which he had to resort against his own army and his own countrymen, as well as against British generals.

That light giving Washington letter written at Mount Vernon July 31, 1788, follows in part:

"To Noah Webster,

"Sir,

"I duly received your letter of the 14th of July and can only answer you briefly, and generally from memory; that a combined operation of the land and naval forces of France and America, for the year 1781, was preconcerted the year before; that the point of attack was not absolutely agreed upon; * * * that it was determined by me (nearly twelve months beforehand,) at all hazards to give out and cause it to be believed by the highest military as well as civil officers that New York was the destined place of attack, for the important purpose of inducing the Eastern & Middle States to make greater exertions in furnishing specific supplies than they otherwise

EDISON RALLIES; AGE THREAT IS CONSTANT

Doctor Howe Says Inventor Never Will Be Out of Danger Again.

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Thomas Alva Edison, the "Wizard of Menlo Park," rallied this morning and demanded food, but Dr. Hubert S. Howe, his personal physician, said he did not think Mr. Edison "ever will be out of danger."

A bulletin, signed by Dr. Howe, and issued at 6:15 p. m. (E. S. T.) said:

"Mr. Edison is alert and much interested in discussing details of diet and treatment. All things considered, he seems definitely improved."

The bulletin was made public by J. Vincent Miller, vice president of the Edison Laboratories, who said, "Mr. Edison had a good day, he slept an hour this afternoon."

The inventor, who is in his eighty-fifth year, collapsed yesterday from a combined attack of Bright's disease and diabetes. He spent a fairly comfortable night, Dr. Howe said, and seemed much better today.

In a statement to reporters Dr. Howe said Mr. Edison had been a diabetic for many years and, although the condition was rather mild in nature, it complicated chronic Bright's disease with which Mr. Edison also has been stricken.

"The wear and tear of time has brought Mr. Edison to his present condition," Dr. Howe said. "He has been treated with insulin injections in a battle with the diabetes.

"He needs just the right amount of water and just the right amount of insulin, not too much of either, and his diet must be very carefully watched.

"Mr. Edison is better today, but a collapse, as ill as he is, might be serious. I don't think he'll ever be out of danger.

"He looked fairly well today and seems to realize his condition. However, it would not take very much to roll off the balance. A man of his energies wants to feel well. Mr. Edison has been suffering with ulcers of the stomach for the past twenty years. He has had some pain. His Bright's disease flared up again two years ago, when he suffered an attack of pneumonia."

Dr. Howe explained that Mr. Edison has had trouble with Bright's disease, a kidney ailment, and that the organs have not been able satisfactorily to rid his body of nitrogenous poisons.

Dr. Howe made his statement just before leaving by motor for New York. He returned in two hours to the Edison home in Llewellyn Park.

Charles Edison, son of the inventor, entered his father's bedroom this morning and wrote a message for him, saying, "You look 100 per cent better today."

Mr. Edison, who is deaf, replied by

77 PERSONS SAVED FROM BURNING SHIP

One Woman, Two Children Among Those Rescued as Blast Threatens.

New York, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—In face of a threatened explosion, 77 passengers, including one woman and two children, were rescued today from the fire-enveloped fishing boat Usona, formerly a submarine chaser.

The captain and his crew of five, who refused to desert the blazing boat, also emerged uninjured.

Homebound from a deep-sea fishing expedition off Sandy Hook, the Usona, a 110-foot vessel, suddenly caught fire as she was passing Forty-ninth street in the East River. The fire started in the engine room, supposedly from an ignition spark, and gained rapid headway.

Fright gripped the passengers and there was a scramble for life belts. But boats from the Red Wing Boat Club and the U. S. Life Saving Corps were maneuvering alongside almost immediately. Police launches arrived quickly afterward and the work of transferring the screaming passengers to the shore began.

The woman and two children were the first taken off. Capt. Larson and his crew had succeeded in almost extinguishing the blaze when a fireboat arrived.

During the war the Usona was submarine chaser No. 161. It had one German U-boat to its credit.

New York, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Two men lost their lives, a third is not expected to live and thirteen others were rescued from a heavy sea when the 36-foot cabin cruiser Rineide capsized off Sandy Hook today.

The dead are Walter James, 37, and Charles Ehrens, 36, both of Jersey City. Charles Snedecker, 45, who was unconscious when pulled from the water, was said at the Marine Hospital on Staten Island to have little chance to survive.

Four members of the party, which set out early today on a fishing expedition, were rescued by the fishing boat Nautilus. The others were pulled in by Coast Guardsmen who were cruising in the vicinity in a patrol boat.

Schneider Cup Entry, Italian Ace, Is Killed

Rome, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Capt. Giovanni Monti, one of Italy's premier speed-fliers, was killed today when his plane plunged into Lake Garda while training for the Schneider Cup seaplane races.

The death of Monti, who was a noted athlete and a member of the last Schneider Cup Team, was considered a severe blow to Italy's hopes of a victory.

Roumania Nabs 1,500 Reds; 5 Slain in Poland, Germany

London, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Reports received here from Bucharest today said police arrested 1,500 Communist leaders throughout Roumania yesterday in putting down Communist demonstrations on antiwar day.

From Sofia, Bulgaria, it was reported that Communists attempted to persuade workmen in various towns to leave work, but that police suppressed all meetings.

Order was maintained in Budapest and minor demonstrations in various industrial towns in Czechoslovakia were stopped by the police. Bayonets and rubber truncheons were used upon Communists in Bruck, Austria, and storm troops of the gendarmerie were called out.

Berlin, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—A dispatch to the Wolff Bureau from Warsaw today said three persons were killed and 90 injured in various parts of Poland yesterday in bloody clashes between police and Communists which accompanied Communist antiwar day demonstrations.

In Warsaw, the dispatch said, police fired upon a crowd of 300, killing one and wounding four. Conflicts were also reported numerous in the Dombrowa coal-mining region where,

VOTE DEMANDS AUTONOMY FOR PART OF SPAIN

Catalonians Seek Self-Government Within New Republic.

173,000 FAVOR PLAN; 2,157 IN OPPOSITION

Move Held Hard Problem for Constitutional Assembly at Madrid.

Barcelonia, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Catalonia, the ancient province which occupies some 12,000 square miles in the northeast corner of Spain, again today voiced its demand through a plebiscite for self-government within the republic.

A "draft statute" providing for a semiindependent government, as demanded by Col. Francisco Macia, white-haired leader of the Separatists, was overwhelmingly supported by voters in Barcelona, Lerida, Tarragona and Gerona, the four subdivisions of Catalonia.

The central government at Madrid is opposed to the plan.

Crowds Enthusiastic.

A tabulation of the final vote showed approximately 173,000 in favor of the statute and 2,157 against it. Enthusiastic crowds gathered to hear the election returns broadcast by radio. When the result became known Col. Macia declared:

"Citizens, you have signed your papers for liberty. Now we can help other regions obtain their autonomy."

The draft statute already has been approved by the Chamber of Deputies and a majority of the city councils of Catalonia. Later it will be presented to the constitutional assembly at Madrid, where it is expected to become one of the most difficult problems in outlining the new republican constitution of Spain.

Catalan Official Language.

The statute, which describes Catalonia as "an autonomous state within the Spanish Republic with powers emanating from the people," makes Catalan the official language. It also reserves control over penal, civil, mercantile, criminal and labor laws, railroads, canals, public works and mining and fishing legislation.

Taxation would be divided, roughly, between indirect taxes to Spain and direct taxes to Catalonia. There would be a Parliament, a president and his council.

Provision also has been made for other territories merging with Catalonia, with consent of the Madrid assembly. This was to permit admission of the Balearic Islands later if possible.

Humidity Hits 80, Summer's Highest

Mercury Ranges From 73 to 88; Relief May Be Felt Today.

It wasn't the heat, it was the humidity. According to the Weather Bureau, the highest humidity for the summer was recorded yesterday. Although the percentage of humidity has seldom been known to exceed the 50 mark, officials at the bureau last night declared that at 8 o'clock yesterday morning it mounted to 80. Throughout the day it varied only slightly, having dropped only one degree at 8 o'clock last night.

The maximum temperature registered yesterday was 88 ta 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The lowest was 73 at 6 a. m. The kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue registered four degrees above the official reading at the Weather Bureau at the same time.

The humidity is expected to drop today, with a forecast of partly cloudy and probable thunderstorms this afternoon. Tomorrow will be fair with the temperature remaining about the same.

Hundreds of persons sought the open air last night, hoping to find relief from the murky atmosphere. Parks in all sections of the city were crowded to capacity.

LINDBERGHS REACH CHURCHILL AND RECEIVE HUGE WELCOME; WORLD AIRMEN HALF AROUND

Herndon and Pangborn Off From Chita, Siberia, Day Behind Record.

END 1,700-MILE HOP FROM OHMSK SAFELY

Route Is Over One of Most Isolated Countries in World.

Moscow, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—A report to the Tass Agency today said that Hugh Herndon, jr., and Clyde Pangborn, American round-the-world aviators, took off from Chita, Siberia, for Khabarovsk at 5:30 p. m. today, Moscow time (9:30 a. m., E. S. T.).

America's second pair of round-the-world fliers reached approximately the halfway point on their flight when they landed at Chita at 1 p. m., Moscow time (5 a. m., E. S. T.), just a half hour short of being five full days out of New York.

Ending the 1,700-mile hop from Omsk without a stop, the airmen planned to refuel at Chita and take off as quickly as possible for Khabarovsk and thence homeward in an effort to surpass the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty over the same route.

Almost Day Behind Record.

When they landed at Chita they had consumed 119½ hours since they left New York, which placed them almost a full day behind the mark of Post and Gatty at the same point.

They lost valuable time when they were forced down yesterday at Jietiegari, over 500 miles southwest of Omsk, but they were keeping in mind that Post and Gatty lost 26 hours in a mudhole at Blagovoschensk, which time they hope they can pick up if they avoid adversity on the remainder of their journey.

The route from Chita lies over one of the most isolated terrains in the world to Khabarovsk, and thence across the Sea of Okhotsk and the Bering Sea homeward.

The fliers were sighted over Krasnoyarsk at 3:15 a. m. Moscow time (7:15 p. m. Saturday E.S.T.) and again over Irkutsk at 5:30 a. m. Moscow time (9:30 p. m. Saturday E.S.T.).

When they passed over Irkutsk they had consumed 112 hours since they left New York, or four and two-thirds days, and they still had nearly 500 miles to reach Chita, which is approximately halfway around their globe-circling route.

When Post and Gatty reached Irkutsk they had been on the wing less than 100 hours.

Less Than 100 Hours.

Leaving Moscow only ten hours behind Post and Gatty in spite of their slower plane, Herndon and Pangborn ran into bad luck shortly after crossing the Ural Mountains, when they were forced down at Jietiegari, some distance south of their true course. The cause of the landing was not given in the meager advices received here, but it was thought a strong northeast wind blew them off their route.

They lost no time, however, in striking out for Omsk. Reports of their landing at the latter place indicated that they probably found it necessary to lighten their fuel load in order to take off from a makeshift landing field at Jietiegari and to fill up again at Omsk.

Remaining at Omsk only three hours, they again resumed the race against time by starting the long hop to Chita.

Amy Johnson Reaches Irkutsk in Her Flight

Moscow, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Miss Amy Johnson, British flier, arrived at Irkutsk in Siberia last night en route to Chita, where she expected to land today on the heels of the Pangborn-Herndon globe circling plane.

Miss Johnson, attempting to fly to Tokyo in six days, left England early Tuesday. She had only about 1,800 miles over Siberia and Manchuria to cover in two days to achieve her goal.

Small Boy at Play Killed; Struck by Auto in Street

Thud of Impact Scatters Companions in Fright as Child, 6, Only Son, Darts From Sidewalk Into Path of Car.

William A. S. Stokes, just over 6 years old, only son of Mrs. Mildred S. Stokes and grand son of the Rev. William Shelton, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, was killed when run down by an automobile last night.

The car was driven by Mrs. Catherine Robertson, 40 years old, 5208 Fifth street northwest, an employ of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., knocked the child down when he darted into Buchanan street near Fifteenth street northwest.

The child was playing with several children in front of 1426 Buchanan street when he ran from the sidewalk into the path of Mrs Robertson's car. As brakes shrieked and the thud of the child's body was heard, his playmates fled in fright.

J. A. O'Donohue, 1411 Buchanan street northwest, placed the child in an automobile and sped to Walter Reed Hospital, where it was pronounced dead of a compound fracture of the skull, internal injuries and broken legs.

Mrs. Robertson told police of the Tenth Precinct that she did not see the boy until it was too late to avoid hitting him. An inquest will be held at the morgue today.

Robbins, Jones Again Attempt Tokyo Flight

Reginald L. Robbins (left), and H. S. Jones are trying to reach Tokyo from Seattle by air. Inset shows plane being refueled near Fairbanks, Alaska, before they were forced down on earlier attempt.

Weather Is Favorable as Nonstop Hop Start Is Made at Seattle.

Seattle, August 2 (A.P.).—Reg. L. Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Fort Worth, Tex., fliers left here at 7:02 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time) today for Tokyo, 5,100 miles away, on their second attempt to conquer the North Pacific in a single hop.

The white monoplane, Fort Worth, lifted easily from the runway after speeding 3,500 feet. The run down the field started exactly at 7 a. m., because Robbins described that as his lucky hour. The plane carried 345 gallons of gasoline.

At 9:55 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time) they passed over Quesnel, British Columbia, 375 miles north of here. They turned northwest following the charted course. Earlier

SUSPECT CONFESSES IN SOLOMON SLAYING

Man in Jail on Other Count Hunted by Police Since Murder.

The murder of Mannie Solomon, 29-year-old taxicab driver, was believed solved last night with the confession of William C. Robinson, 21 years old, colored, that he shot Solomon during an attempted hold-up at Union and O streets southwest late Wednesday night.

Robinson has been in custody since Thursday, when he was arrested by Patrolman B. D. Crooke, of the Second Precinct, who captured him after a chase when he was discovered while allegedly breaking into a house on W street, near Ninth street northwest.

Detectives, who had suspected Robinson of connection with the Solomon murder, and were combing the Southwest section for him and two alleged associates in the crime, were unaware that their quarry was safe behind the bars at the Second Precinct.

Speedy New Fighting Plane Being Built for U. S. Navy

(Associated Press.)

An improved type of fighting plane, which Rear Admiral William A. Moffett believes will equal the performance of the speediest foreign model, is now under contract for the Navy.

Announcing this yesterday, the chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics indicated the new fighter not only would rival the 214-mile per hour speed of the British "interceptor" plane, but would excel it in cruising range.

The new plane is an improved type of Boeing fighter and will be produced by the Boeing Airplane Co., of Seattle, Wash. Detailed specifications bearing on its probable performance are being withheld.

"The British interceptor fighter," Moffett said, "is the only machine today which now incorporates the principles of the racing machine, but this machine was destined entirely as a defensive weapon. Its development was deemed necessary by the air ministry of Great Britain for the defense of London, due to that city's proximity to many alien countries.

"The power plant of this type is highly supercharged and can not be

Colonel and Wife Arrive in Manitoba, Refuel for Next Hop.

TRIP TO BAKER LAKE OVER BARREN LANDS

Indians in Crowd Greeting Pair Arriving From Moose Factory.

(Pictures on Page Two.)

Churchill, Maintobs, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived in this far northern outpost of civilization late today after a 750-mile flight from Moose Factory along the bleak shore of Hudson Bay.

The Lindbergs splashed the steel pontoons of their black and scarlet monoplane into the choppy harbor at 6:50 p. m., E. S. T.

They were rowed into Churchill for a celebration such as the hardy fur traders and other residents of the tiny village have never held before, while Canadian government experts swarmed over their plane, refueling it for the next hop to Baker Lake, 390 miles to the north in the "barrens" where not even the hardiest tree can live.

The grinning colonel and his smiling wife, clad in warm aviation suits and vests which could be inflated almost instantly to act as life preservers, were greeted by a motley crowd of cheering trappers, grave-faced Indians, royal mounted police and workers from the Hudson Bay Co.'s trading post.

Trek Miles From Cabins.

Some of the celebrators had trekked miles from their cabins in the forests to the south, while others had paddled up the placid Churchill and Deer Rivers.

Sirens, horns and bells on the ice-scarred craft in the harbor broke the Sunday calm of the sub-Arctic while the dusty main street fluttered red-white-and-blue bunting hastily improvised from the stores of the Hudson Bay Co.

Mrs. Lindbergh acknowledged the plaudits of the natives while her husband conferred with mechanics and the harbor master concerning safety of his plane. He was worried particularly over the rip-tide which periodically sweeps at 15 miles an hour through the harbor. The tide already has carried two far northern mail planes to destruction o rocks of Hudson Bay, even though the ships were secured to 400-pound concrete anchors.

Flight Is Uneventful.

The Lindberghs said their dash over the virgin forrests and sparkling lakes between here and Moose Factory was uneventful, although the weather was not the best for flying. The Churchill radio operator had described it as stormy. They waited until 10 a. m. Eastern standard time, before leaving Moose Factory in order to avoid the heavy fogs which envelop the countryside in the early morning.

They roared along at an average of about 125 miles an hour, staying close to the shore of Hudson Bay and flying high so that they could float down easily to any of the innumerable inland lakes should engine trouble have made a forced landing necessary.

The Colonel and his wife faced the next hazardous leg of their flight with entire confidence.

The timber line is only a few miles to the north and from there to Baker Lake only the brown rocks of glacial deposits and the piles of sand blown up by northern gales meet the eye. There is no human life in the desolate expanse and but little vegetation. Many large lakes, thousands of small ones, and many rivers and streams, however, afford haven for the trail-blazing Lindberghs.

Moose Factory, Aug. 2 (By Associated Press Airplane to Coral Rapids, Ontario).—On time, as usual, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh brought their plane down at this isolated trading post at 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday and proceeded northward today, but the signals of their radio set were too weak to inform the outside world of their safety.

Faint Signals Explained.

The faint radio signals were explained by Col. Lindbergh to Herbert

A check-up of Rodriguez's fingerprints and his likeness with photographs and fingerprint files at police headquarters indicated that he had been sentenced in 1929 for the killing of a young man in a brawl at Lincoln, Nebr.

It was said at the embassy that Rodriguez appeared to be a "very sick man." No intercession, attaches said, would be instituted in behalf of the man.

der was established by Precinct Detective M. H. Mahaney, who had been asked to talk with Robinsno. Mahaney recognised him as the man who was sought in the Solomon case and communicated with Detective Sergeants Thomas Sweeney and Carlton Talley who quizzed the suspect at length yesterday and obtained a signed confession from him.

In the statement to the police he admitted that he and two other colored men had been thwarted in an attempt to hold up the store of Isadore Koblem, at 1356 South Capitol street. Koblem shouted and one of the men fired at him.

Later in the night, he said, they hired Solomon's taxi at New York avenue and Ninth street northwest and ordered him to drive to Union and O streets southwest. Arriving there, they paid him the fare and, Robinson said, he pointed the gun at Solomon and told him to hand over his money.

Instead of complying, Solomon put the car in gear and started away. Then, Robinson admitted, he fired a shot, which killed Solomon instantly. From there the three men ran to the Seventh street wharves, where, he said, they threw the gun in the river.

Police have no knowledge of the whereabouts of the other men implicated in the crime and expressed the belief that they had left the city. Robinson is charged with investigation and is being held at the Twelfth Precinct.

Robinson lives at 124 E street southwest.

Clegg, who arrived here today from North Bay, Ontario, in a plane chartered by the Associated Press and talked with the flying colonel before the Lindberghs departed at 10 a. m. for Churchill 751.5 miles to the north.

Col. Lindbergh smiled when Clegg recalled that his landing here yesterday was the exact hour at which he had anticipated arriving when he left Ottawa.

While the outside world became puzzled and later apprehensive after the signals from the Lindbergh plane ceased at 1:15 p. m. yesterday, Col. Lindbergh, barefoot, shy and reserved, captured the admiration of the residents of Moose Factory, a tiny settlement of half a dozen frame houses.

Good Trip From Ottawa.

When he and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived he said they had had a good trip from Ottawa and were enjoying their air vacation trip very much. Then he busied himself with his plane, occupying most of the afternoon with the task of refueling.

He transferred four drums of gasoline to the plane's tanks and had to transfer the supply in 5-gallon cans. While at this job the flying colonel walked around in his bare feet; in fact, he stayed barefoot all afternoon.

The Lindberghs stayed at the home of the district manager of the Hudson's Bay Co., Mr. West, who, though absent, had turned his quarters over to them. They were entertained at dinner by the post manager, or factor, of the Hudson's Bay trading post at Moose Factory, one of the oldest settlements in Canada. They had dinner at 3 o'clock last night and then walked around the island on which Moose Factory is situated. The Lindberghs expressed admiration for the country today and said they had had a fine night's rest.

Communication Difficult.

Moose Factory is without means of communication with the outside world except by plane or boat. A boat must breast the swift current of the Moose River and can not complete the trip to Coral Rapids, the end of the telegraph line, in less than almost a full day.

Last night when there was no word from the Lindbergh plane and it was realized that the radio antenna is wound up on landing and no messages could be sent from Moose Factory, Pilot Clegg agreed to fly to Moose Factory from North Bay at dawn.

At 3 a. m. he left North Bay and three hours later reached Moose Factory, landing his cabin amphibian close to the anchored Lindbergh plane. He remained here until Col. Lindbergh took off for Churchill.

A recapitulation today showed the Lindberghs, leaving Ottawa at 9:49 a. m. yesterday, covered the 461 miles to Moose Factory in 4 hours and 11 minutes, or an average of about 110 miles an hour.

Pilot Outwits Storm; Phones of Lindberghs

North Bay, Ontario, Aug. 2 (A. P.).—There's an aviator in the North country who would be right at home in the city room of a newspaper office. He is Pilot Herbert Clegg.

Today Clegg and a mechanic left here for Moose Factory, directed by the Associated Press to obtain news of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. Clegg made the flight of more than 300 miles, got his story, took pictures and started back.

Like a good reporter, he stopped at the nearest telephone booth, which, in this case, was the telegraph office at Coral Rapids, about 75 miles away. He foresaw the terrific storm ahead.

Tonight, the storm he had anticipated forced him down at Cochrane on the return flight. The first thing he did was to go to the telephone and explain about the pictures.

HERNDON, PANGBORN QUIT HALFWAY MARK

back into the race for a world record after they had been thrown far behind schedule by adverse weather conditions.

"Motor and ship and both boys okay," said a message they sent to their New York headquarters from Chita. "Will bring in a new record or bust. Inform families."

The "Garrison finish" planned by Pangborn for the last stages of the flight was generally believed to give them a good chance of breaking the Post-Gatty mark. They need good luck, however, to achieve their goal.

Continuing the average flying speed of about 100 miles an hour, the fliers should arrive in Alaska within 30 hours after leaving Chita, possibly around 9 p. m. (Eastern standard time) Monday. From Alaska they would face a flight of more than 3,000 miles to New York, a hazardous and daring dash across the North American continent.

Return of Amtorg Director Is Sought

Buenos Aires Police Will Ask for Extradition From Montevideo.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—An attempt will be made by the police here to extradite Alexander Minkin, director of the Russian Amtorg office here, from Montevideo, it was learned tonight.

The director was absent from the country when police raided the Amtorg Friday and made 150 arrests. The Amtorg is the South American trading corporation of the Soviet government.

Thirty-one of the persons arrested in the Amtorg office have been released. The investigation has been retarded considerably, it was said, because the majority of Argentine officials have no knowledge of Russian and the records and correspondence of the office are in that language. Former officers of the Russian white army have been employed as translators.

Thirty more Russians were arrested today and held for investigation.

NEW START IS MADE ON FLIGHT TO TOKYO

Airmen Take Off at Seattle for Nonstop Hop; Plan to Refuel Twice.

they had been sighted over Lyton, B. C., and over North Bend, B. C.

The weather over the great circle route to Tokyo was described by C. O. Schick, meteorologist, as being favorable. He said they would have clear skies with good visibility from Seattle to White Horse, Yukon Territory, but would meet slightly increasing cloudiness as they approached Fairbanks. Visibility in the interior of Alaska was good although generally cloudy. Showers and increasing cloudiness, he said, may greet the fliers over the Bering Sea and down the Siberian coast.

Robbins and Jones expected to reach Fairbanks by 6 or 7 p. m. (Pacific standard time) tonight. There they expect to meet a refueling plane, and after taking on fuel in the air fly westward with it to the Bering Sea, a flight of five or six hours.

They will again refuel there and then head down the Siberian coast for Tokyo, which they hoped to reach as early as midnight Monday, 40 hours after leaving the field here.

Schick said the fliers would probably have light headwinds during part of their trip. The weather, after they reach Alaska, will decide which of three routes they will take over the Bering Sea. They may go as far north as Teller, 40 miles north of Nome, and thence across the Bering Sea, head over the Arctic waters at Nome or from Unalaklett. The latter is the shortest way across and would cut about 200 miles from the route.

Taken to the extreme north edge of the field, the plane roared down the runway in the opposite direction from their flight. Robbins banked, turned sharply and headed the plane northward over the city, to disappear in the haze to the north. Several hundred persons were at the field when Robbins and Jones arrived at 6:30 a. m. They ordered the ship from the hangar immediately and the motor was warmed for twenty minutes.

Both had slept well and ate a hearty breakfast. They went to bed last night believing the weather would be so bad today they would not start. Awakened at 6 a. m., they cheered at word of clearing conditions over the route and hurried through breakfast.

The fliers had planned to hop yesterday, but waited a day because of a last-minute weather report from Alaska. Rain and overcast skies cut the ceiling and visibility at Nome and Fairbanks to virtually nothing. The weather was blamed by Schick on a sudden storm which swept the area.

Storms over Nome and Fairbanks would make contacts with the refueling plane, with Pilots James Mattern and Nick Greener, virtually impossible.

Plans are for the planes to refuel over Fairbanks and fly together to the Bering Sea, with the Fort Worth's tanks to be filled there to capacity—500 gallons—for the remaining 2,500 miles to Tokyo.

Bumpy weather and a motor too light to carry more than 300 gallons of gas forced the fliers to land at Solomon Beach, last month, after about 27 hours in the air from Seattle, and after several successful refuelings had been completed.

The men are competing for a prize of $25,000 posted by Asahi Shimbun, Japanese newspaper, for the first nonstop flight between Japan and the United States.

Robbins and Jones will alternate at the controls, although Jones' specialty is navigating. During good weather the flier in the rear compartment may get some sleep.

Istanbul Fliers Honor President of Turkey

Istanbul, Turkey, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—The American fliers, Russell Boardman and John Polando, this morning placed a wreath of red and white flowers, tied with the colors of America and Turkey, at the foot of the monument of the Turkish Republic which depicts Mustapha Kemal as military commander and president.

The ceremony took place in the presence of thousands of Turkish spectators.

On the wreath was in inscription which read: "The American aviators, Russell Boardman and John Polando, in token of their admiration for the Turkish Republic and its great leader, President Mustapha Kemal."

Two Men, Woman Taken in Rum Raid

Warrant for Apartment on New York Avenue Is Based on Purchase.

Still using police officers instead of informers to make purchases in speakeasies, the vice squad of the First Inspection District early yesterday raided an apartme ntat 919 New York avenue northwest and arrested two men and a woman.

The squad, headed by Sergt. R. A. Johnson, was armed with a search warrant based on an alleged liquor purchase by a police officer, and confiscated a quantity of alleged alcohol and alleged beer.

Mrs. Flora E. Burch, 26 years old, 928 New York avenue northwest, and her husband, Harry M. Burch, jr., 27 years old, and Ross O. Holmes, 24 years old, 1214 I street northwest, were charged with illegal possession. All were released in $500 bond.

operated at full power near the ground. A liquid-cooled engine with retractible radiator is used, and their best speed is obtained at about 12,000 feet with the radiator pulled in out of the windstream.

"The airplanes are well streamlined, but liquid-cooled engines are highly vulnerable to gunfire and are by no means as reliable as our American air-cooled engines. * * *

"There are, at the present time, planes under contract in the United States which, it is believed, will equal the performance of this foreign type, and which will be admirably suited for the very arduous tasks assigned to them, when operating over the open seas from carriers."

The importance of sufficient funds for studying high-speed airplane development was emphasized by Admiral Moffett.

ONE OF EVERY 4 IDLE PAST 48 YEARS OLD

Largest Number of Jobless Among Those From 20 to 24 Years.

(United Press.)

One out of every four unemployed is past the age of 48 years, when the resiliency of youth is gone for many, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

The report was based on analysis of the April, 1930, census, when 2,429,662 able-bodied persons looking for work were found without a job. The latest estimate of unemployed is more than twice that total.

The median or average of unemployed was 36.3 years for 2,058,738 jobless men, and 27.6 years for 370,324 women, who were out of jobs.

In the ranks of another clas of the unemployed in April, 1930, those laid off without pay, were 758,585 more persons, of whom 25 percent were over 47 years of age.

The largest number of unemployed, classified in five-year classes as to age, was among those from 20 to 24 years.

But among those of 70 years and over, there were listed nearly 40,000 out of jobs and looking for work, and more than 10,000 laid off without pay.

Attack on Hawks' Time 'Cross Country Planned

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug 2 (A.P.).—The transcontinental speed derby of the 1931 national air races, starting from Los Angeles and ending officially at Cleveland Airport, may develop into an assault upon Capt. Frank Hawks' record of 12 hours and 25 minutes from Los Angeles to New York.

Headquarters of the air races which will be held here August 29 to September 7 tonight announced that the free-for-all speed race will start from United Airport, Los Angeles, and that from four to six planes capable of making more than 225 miles an hour will be entered. The race carried a purse of $10,000.

EDISON RALLIES; AGE THREAT IS CONSTANT

throwing up both his hands in a typical Edisonian gesture and saying:

"You mean 105 per cent better."

Thereupon he demanded food, but Dr. Howe would permit him only a small portion of tapioca and some milk enriched with a little cream.

Henry Ford telephoned from Dearborn today for news of his old crony's condition. Reports were Ford was overjoyed to hear of Edison's improvement.

Harvey Firestone, tire magnate and third member of the Edison-Ford, Firestone triumvirate of a long-standing friendship, called early this morning.

Charles Edison and Dr. Howe said the main difficulty in the inventor's fight to regain health would be to keep him on a light food diet.

Both the younger Edison and Dr. Howe remarked that Edison, as soon as he felt his strength returning, would insist he be given something to eat. Dr. Howe explained Mr. Edison's run-down condition is due partly to the fact the inventor has eaten little more than milk for many years.

Mr. Edison's wife, as well as Charles and William L. Edison, of Wilmington, Del., were in constant attendance at the aged inventor's bedside. The only one of the Edison children not present was Mrs. Marion Oser, of Norwalk, Conn.

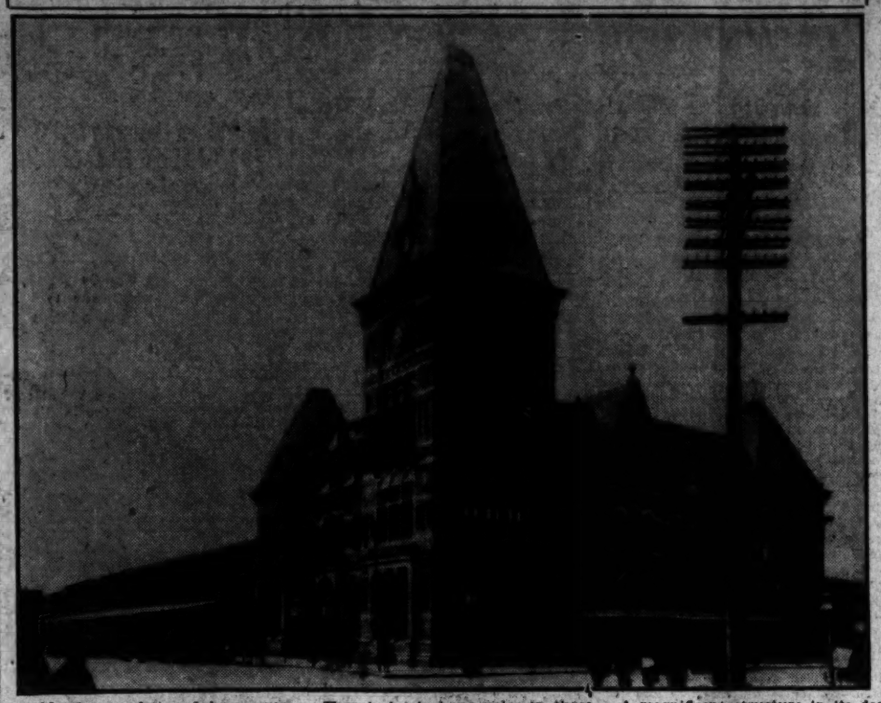
When Washington Was Younger—No. 2



ALL the comforts of home were not provided on de luxe trains traveling at 60 miles an hour when this building was officially opened in 1872. It is the old Pennsylvania Railroad Station which stood at Sixth and B streets northwest.

They had telephone poles in those days and isn't that one at the right a piece of real art? Lined along the side of the "depot," as they were called in those days, may be seen the horse-drawn cabs and mail wagons, now succeeded by huge trucks and shrieking taxis.

A magnificent structure in its day, this old station became obsolete when the Union Station was opened in 1907 and soon after was subjected to the wrecking process which has removed many of the earlier Capital landmarks.

Watch Plus Many Deals Got Robbins First Plane

Seattle, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—A country boy trader, "who swapped his knives for busted tops," and the "best flier going," was the description given Reg L. Robbins by his flying mate, Harold S. Jones, both of Fort Worth, Tex., before they started their nonstop flight to Tokyo today.

Robbins made a battered gold watch grow into an airplane. He traded it for something better and finally had a "rickety old flivver."

This went the same way for a "car" which was swapped for a motorcycle, which went for another automobile. Then Robbins traded his car for a half interest in a $375 "fifty hand" plane, his first.

That was eight years ago, and his first flight was in his "half" plane. He soon owned "both halves." Since then he has had. "Oh, about a dozen." The trim white monoplane Fort Worth is the latest. "I got it through deals," he said.

2 Washingtonians Win Licenses to Pilot Gliders

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—The opening day of the second annual national gliding and soarding cotest here was dampened by rain most of the day, followed by a calm which caused the contesting pilots to confine their events to the Elmira Airport.

Several thousand persons witnessed L. F. Ross, of Cleveland, official referee, give junior pilots tests for licenses. Robert Eaton, of Norwich, N. Y., was the only one to pass the Class A examination. Those who qualified for the Class B license included J. H. Stickler, United States Volunteer Air Service, and Mrs. R. S. Barnaby, both of Washington.

Today his condition was reported slightly improved, although still critical. His physicians said in a bulletin at midnight: "He is apparently fighting a losing fight."

WASHINGTON TOLD AIM 'AT YORKTOWN

would have done, as well as for the interesting purpose of rendering the enemy less prepared elsewhere, * * * that it was the fixed determination to strike the enemy in the most vulnerable quarter so as to ensure success with moral certainty, as our affairs were then in the most ruinous train imaginable; that New York was thought to be beyond our effort, and consequently the only hesitation that remained was between an attack upon the British army in Virginia or that in Charleston; and, finally, after the intervention of several communications, * * * the hostile post in Virginia * * * became the definitive and certain object of the campaign. * * *

"Some splendid advantage * * * was so essentially necessary to revive the expiring hopes and languid exertion of the country, at the crisis in question, that I never would have consented to embark in any enterprise, wherein from the most rational plan and accurate calculations, the favorable issue should not have appeared as clear to my view as a ray of light. * * *

"That much trouble was taken and finesse used to misguide and bewilder Sir Henry Clinton in regard to the real object, by fictitious communications, as well as by making a deceptive provision of ovens, forage and boats in his neighborhood, is certain. Nor were less pains taken to deceive our own army; for I had always conceived, when the imposition did not completely take place at home, it could never sufficiently succeed abroad. ½ ½ ""

Yorktown Awaits Governor of Ohio

National Guard Troops Are Expected to Attend Sesquicentennial.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Gov. George White is expected to lead the official Ohio delegation to the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration in October, according to word received here today by Yorktown Sesquicentennial Association.

Action taken at the last session of the General Assembly assured Ohio's representation at the exercises commemorating the surrender of Lord Cornwallis to Gen. Washington and his allied French and American troops.

The Senate adopted a separate resolution providing $1,500 to defray the expenses of the representatives, while the expenses of the house delegation will be paid out of the lower body's general appropriation of $7,500. It is expected that several details of troops from the Ohio National Guard will accompany the official party to Yorktown.

Gov. Pollard's invitation to Ohio to participate in the celebration was carried to the State Legislature last February 26 by Lieut. Gov. James H. Price.

WORLD BANK SETS BERLIN AID PARLEY

inquiry committee if the committee wishes it.

President Gates W. McGarrah was present for today's discussions, which usually are held on the day before a regular board session, but Dr. Hans Luther, president of the German Reichsbank, and Montague Norman, director of the Bank of England, were absent. Subordinates appeared for Dr. Luther and Mr. Norman.

The belief prevailed in informed quarters today that it will require several weeks to examine the German situation, as suggested by the London conference of ministers. The extent of the inquiry is one of the questions which the directors of the World Bank must determine, and on this the length of time largely depends.

A possibility exists that a committee of bankers might make one report as soon as possible on the immediate needs of new credits in Germany and spend more time later studying the possibilities of converting some of the existing short term credits to long term credits.

The governors and directors must first formally constitute the committee of inquiry, the members of which have already been designated by the interested governments.

Other points to be settled are when and where the committee will first meet, how it will proceed and how thoroughly it will go into the examination of Germany's financial condition.

It is expected that the first meeting will be at Basel soon after the American representative, Albert H. Wiggin, arrives from New York, and presumably much of the study will be done at Berlin, probably in examination of the German budget and credit conditions of the Reischsbank and other banks.

Club members will accompany the sponsor to each meeting.

The first meeting will be held at Richmond at 1 p. m. today, with Eugene R. Woodson, first vice president of the Washington club, as sponsor. A similar meeting at Ashland, Va., tonight will be in charge of Harry G. Kimball, former governor.

Frederick, Md., will be the host club on Tuesday, with President Merritt O. Chance, of Washington, sponsor. A dinner meeting Tuesday night at Fredericksburg, Va., will include a program under the direction of Edgar Morris, fomer president and present district trustee.

James B. Edmunds, immediate past president, will have charge of the meeting with the newly formed Arlington County Club at Clarendon, Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. and Bynum E. Hinton will sponsor a meeting at Towson, Md., Wednesday night.

The regular monthly business meeting of the local club will be held as usual at the Washington Hotel, Thursday at 12:30. That night a meeting will be conducted at Martinsburg, W. Va., sponsored by Z. D. Blackistone, a club director. A meeting at Lancaster, Pa., Friday noon will be in charge of Vice President Edwin F. Hill.

At Manassas, Va., Friday night a rally will conclude the week's series of meetings. George H. Winslow, a member of the Washington interclub relations committee, will be the sponsor of this meeting. Other meetings of a similar nature are contemplated at a later date.

TOURIST FACILITIES WILL BE INSPECTED

Check on Sanitation to Be Launched Soon in Fairfax County.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

Dr. A. L. Carson, jr., director of public health of Fairfax County, is making arangements to have all tourists' centers, tourists' homes, lunch rooms and filling stations along the Washington-Richmond highway inspected by a representative of the State Health Department. A sanitary inspector will visit these places within the next few weeks and notify the owners what changes must be made to insure proper sanitation for the traveling public, in occordance with State regulations.

A recheck of the places along the highway will be made following the first inspection, and the owners who fail to comply with the health regulations will be prosecuted, Dr. Carson stated. This section of Fairfax County will be taken care of first, as more tourists visit Mount Vernon than any other point in the county, while other sections will be inspected by the county and State authorities before the end of the year.

Dr. Carson has suggested that all dairymen who ship milk into Washington should have every child on their premises given the diphtheria antitoxin. When a case of diphtheria develops on a dairy farm no milk can be shipped to Washington.

The annual carnival being held on the grounds of the Franklin-Sherman High School, on the Chain Bridge road, at McLean, by the Volunteer Fire Department and the School and Civic League of McLean, will continue through this week.

The carnival opened Saturday afternoon with a large attendance. Among the events of the day was a baby show under the direction of Mrs. Ethel Bailey, assisted by Cecil Rawlings and Mrs. Kate Storme. The judges were Mrs. G. Ashley Money, of Colvin Run; Mrs. Esther Powell, of Herndon, and Mrs. Louis M. Lowder, of Baltimore, Md. The show was divided into three classes: The first, infants under 9 months, was won by Sarah Louise Loving, daughter of Mrs. C. J. Loving, of McLean, and John Ray Doggett, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Doggett, of Vienna.

The second class of infants, those under 2 years of age, ws won by Mary Anne Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Powell, of McLean, and John Shifflett, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Shifflett, of McLean.

Class three, infants under 3 years of age, was won by Ruth Shifflett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Shifflett, of McLean, and Roy Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Phillips, of Vienna.

The syeepstakes prize for the best boy and girl entered in the show was won by Mary Anne Powell and John Doggett. This is the second year that the sweepstakes prize has been won by Mary Anne Powell.

U. S. Medals Sent To Byrd and Aids

81 Members of Party Are Honored by Action of Congress.

(Associated Press.)

Medals in recognition of the efforts of the Byrd Antarctic expedition have been sent by Secretary Adams to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd for distribution among the 81 members of his party. The action was taken under congressional authorization of May 23, 1930.

On the face of the medal is a likeness of Admiral Byrd in a polar explorer's garb with the inscription: "Byrd Antarctic Expedition—1928-1930."

On the other side is a picture of one of the expedition's ships and the words: "Presented to the officers and men of the Byrd Antarctic expedition to express the high admiration in which the Congress and American people hold their heroic and undaunted service in connection with the scientific investigations and extraordinary aerial explorations of the Antarctic continent."

Admiral Byrd and 65 others, including Russell Owen, newspaper reporter, will receive gold medals. Seven silver and nine bronze medals also will be awarded.

Prohibition Cases Dominate.

In its tentative analysis of the Federal District Court in Connecticut, the report asserted prohibition cases had dominated the entire volume of criminal proceedings.

The number of prohibition cases, the report said, increased by approximately 12 per cent during the three-year period ending June 30, 1930, while the number of other cases increased little, if at all.

It was reported also that the prohibition cases brought before the court had been carefully selected, and that the quick attention given them had contributed to the domination of this type of criminal case over all others.

The "tentative conclusions" reached from the study of Connecticut cases were listed by the committee as follows:

"The selective process and summary disposition found in prohibition cases has resulted in a domination by them of the whole character of the Federal criminal procedings as shown by mass statistics.

Show Large Increase.

"For example: Prohibition cases have increased from 69 per cent of the total of all cases in the first year of the study to 81 per cent in the last; the total increase in the number of crimes has been taken up by prohibition cases, the other offenses remaining practically stationary; they furnish the great majority of fines as opposed to imprisonment; also a majority of the cases are disposed of the same day that the indictment or information is filed; almost 90 per cent of the proceedings are by information in prohibition cases as opposed to 8 per cent for all other cases; the great majority of prohibition cases are charged under the minor category of possession; the confinement of all prohibition offenders actually imprisoned is in local jails contrasted with the commitment of over half of other offenders in Federal cenitentiaries."

Although considerable space was devoted to the analysis of Connecticut cases, much of the treatment was given in a list of 38 tables dealing with various phases of the problem.

Attached to a tabled list of figures dealing with sentences was the following conclusion:

"The preponderant use of the fine and suspended sentence in prohibition cases will be noted, it being used in 49.6 per cent of prohibition cases and in only 2.6 per cent of all other cases.

Get Special Treatment.

"Its use in practically half of the prohibition cases serves to emphasize again the very special treatment which this type of case is receiving. Adding to this 29.3 per cent (fines without cost) and 0.2 per cent (fine and probation), practically 80 per cent of prohibition cases were disposed of by fines."

The committee found that imprisonment was imposed in only 15 per cent of all prohibition cases, as against 38.5 in all other cases, and that the sentences given in dry-law cases usually were standardized.

Most of the increase in prohibition cases, the report said, was taken up by the "less serious aspects of prohibition violation which are classified under 'possession.'"

It added that violations of the Harrison drug act and other drug acts came second to the number of prohibition cases, totaling 44 cases out of 740, with postal offenses third with 35.

One table showed there were 475 pleas of guilty out of a total of 740 cases. Suggestion was offered that defendants hesitated to have their cases tried before a Federal jury, fearing the imposition of large penalties, or that there were "inducements by the prosecutor offered in return for guilty pleas." The report said 92.6 per cent of all prohibition cases were based on guilty pleas.

730 Cases Without Trials.

In 730 cases, the report continued, there were no trials, the jury being used in only 9 cases. Eight were prohibition cases, and in four instances the accused was discharged.

One table showed that in 13 per cent of all the prohibition cases there was more than one defendant, as against 4.8 in other cases.

"It appears that the offense of manufacturing liquor involves more defendants per indictment or information than any other offense," the report said. "The one case of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law involving twelve defendants was the largest single unit among all offenses. The indictment against these twelve was dismissed. These data indicate that there have been relatively few prosecutions of members of 'rings' or groups of offenders jointly."

CASTE SYSTEM CUT BY RENO SOCIETY

Another Innovation Is Made Toward Open-Mindedness in Nevada City.

Reno, Nev., (U.P.).—In addition to easy divorce laws, wide-open gambling and well-ventilated liquor dispensaries, Reno has taken another step toward modern-mindedness by abolishing the "caste" system in her society.

Naturally, there are cliques, but there is no class distinction either within the groups themselves, or between them. Here debutantes dance with shoe clerks, dowagers with gigolos and staid attorneys with flip young clients.

"Reno is the most democratic, cosmopolitan place on earth," said former Judge Bartlett, helmsman of the Reno free-thinkers, "because our divorce colony is composed of broad-minded people who have come here purposely to get away from intolerance and wornout bonds.

"Having the strength of character to break away from the narrow rules and laws of their homes, it would be absurd to imagine them arriving here and reverting to small-town clique ideas and such stuffiness in their everyday life in the colony."

Just Called "Judgey."

Judge Bartlett, known as "Judgey" by the divorcees, is in an excellent position to report on the doings of both the freedom seekers and the native Renoites, for his home has for many years been the rendezvous for them all.

"Judgey" entertains continually and says that neither religion, wealth, social position nor politics has any influence on his invitation sending.

Newly arrived Belle Livingston seems destined to aid in the general "welding" idea here. For everyone will meet at Belle's, drink at Belle's and tell Belle their troubles. (This confiding habit is a favorite Reno indoor sport.)

In fact, it appears that La Belle Livingston will become the "common denominator" of the divorce colony.

Good Omens for La Belle.

From all the omens so far, her place is in line for becoming the town meeting hall. And if Belle infuses her own informality into her night club it will probably mean the final blow to snobbishness in Reno.

That is the spirit in Reno. But there is some cause for speculation as to whether the divorcees will carry their Reno democracy with them when they leave. There is a faint possibility that once safely back home, with their marital troubles cured and no further need of Reno—at least for a time—the divorcees may fall comfortably back into their routine.

There is just a small chance that when the shoe clerk calls on the debutante he may not be so enthusiastically received as he was in Reno. He may turn out to be "just someone I knew in Reno."

But whether there will be any lasting effects of the Reno fraternal sentiments or not—the divorcee at least has a little fling at democracy and social tolerance while serving the six weeks' course in modern-mindedness in the divorce town.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug 2 (U.P.).—Only the United States Government is exempt from paying the Pennsylvania liquid fuels tax, the Department of Revenue has announced.

Versatile Taste Is Shown By Grasshopper Swarms

Grain, Gloves, Feathers and Fork Handles All Prove Desirable to Devastating Pests; Poisoned Bran and Molasses Used to Check Wave.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Star boarders, not a whit particular as to their diet, are the worry of mirwestern farmers this summer.

Over wide areas of five grain belt States millions of hungry grasshoppers have demonstrated the versatility of their eating ability. They have literally devoured everything from grain and gloves to feathers and fork handles.

A steady menu of corn, alfalfa or other grains brings no murmur of discontent from the hoppers. In South Dakota one 1,600-acre grain field was chewed bare by the insect visitors. But when these foods are exhausted they readily turn to other less edible substances.

Bran moistened with molasses is their delight—and downfall. By seasoning this delicacy with poison, farmers and entomologists have succeeded in curbing the pests in many sections of North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota. This week the Iowa Department of Agriculture plans to use airplanes in spreading the poison mixture over waste lands and to allay fears of farmers that the hopper devastation of 1870 may be repeated.

Grasshoppers, according to Dr. C. J. Drake, Iowa State entomogiologist, have a weakness for anything salty. Farmers' garments, after a perspiring day in the field, have retained enough saline savor to be highly desirable to them. At Winner, S. Dak., where screens are protecting trees of one cemetery from the pests, a farmer laid down his gloves at lunch only to find them eaten to shreds on his return. A Monona County, Iowa, farmer's cot, left in the field, similarly was a hoppers' banquet. Even hickory pitchfork handles and wagon tongues have been gnawed to the point of worthlessness by the insects.

But the hoppers sometimes meet their masters. The antithesis of the current plague classic of the Pierre, S. Dak., farmer who sent his turkeys into an infested field only to have them return featherless after an encounter with the insects, comes from Cogswell, N. Dak.

A flock of gulls, better battlers than the domestic fowls, alighted in a grasshopper colony. In a short time that vicinity was free of its unwelcome boarders.

(Associated Press.)

A preliminary report from Iowa yesterday said that State, seriously infested with grasshoppers, was not in need of Government loans to purchase live stock feed.

Extension Director Bliss at Ames, however, asked, "Can drought loans be made to buy poison bait if needed?" He added the insect was being fought "vigorously" in the western part of the State.

This was the first report from the survey now under way in northwestern and central States at the direction of President Hoover to determine the extent and character of State and Federal assistance needed in the drought and grasshopper-ridden areas.

Pocket Picked on Street Car.

Marcel Pelc, 215 E street northwest, reported to police yesterday that a pocketbook containing $19 and a canceled note for $1,645 was stolen from his pocket. He told police he believed the theft was committed while he rode on a street car on H street northwest. Pelc described a man who jostled him and police broadcast a lookout for the suspect.

PROSPECTORS BUSY IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Gold Panning in Black Hills Is Averaging About $5 to $8 a Day.

Deadwood, S. Dak., (U.P.).—Gold pan prospectors again have started mining along Black Hills streams with activity that rivals the famous 1876 rush.

Because of the unemployment situation and the rise in value of gold, many men have staked out all available ground, and in some cases have installed elaborate equipment with which to coax the yellow gold from its hiding place. Rockers, sluice boxes, Long Toms and modern gold machines are a common sight along French Creek, Potato Gulch and Bear Creek.

Miners claim that they are making good wages. Henry Raver, whose dairy farm supplied President Coolidge with milk while he was at the state lodge, found placer mining more profitable than Dairy farming.

Average of $2 a Yard.

He has been averaging about $2 a yard, and is reported to have made as much as $25 in a day. On this farm $40,000 in gold was mined in the '70s during a single month.

"Potato Creek" Johnny Perrett, a veteran Black Hills prospector, recently found a nugget valued at $150, another at $40 and last year he sold one worth $250. Other prospectors in the Potato Creek district average from $5 to $8 a day.

Various Methods.

The prospectors use various methods, the favorite, commonest and least expensive being the pick and shovel and gold pan method. By this method the miner picks loose the rocks, shovels coarse gravel into his pan, takes it to the side of a running stream and lets the water do the work.

A modern machine is in use on French Creek. The ore is shovelled into an ore bin, and from the bin into a funnel where water washes the dirt into a large circular, rotating machine which operates by centrifugal force in much the same manner as a cream separator. The whirling bowl is cleaned out each night and a little panning separates the gold from the gravel.

The gold is sent to the mint at Denver by storekeepers, who buy it from the prospectors, or sold to a bank.

Old Mine Fires Reported Yielding

One in Bear Valley Has Been Burning 40 Years; Dams Used.

Ashland, Pa., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Co. engineers report that efforts to extinguish two old mine fires are meeting success. The fires are burning at the Bear Valley mine, near Shamokin, and the Potts Colliery, near here.

In each case dams were constructed around the fire area, permitted to fill with water, and then opened to send the flood of water into the burning section.

The Bear Valley fire has been burning 40 years and offered the greater problem to the engineers. They built fourteen dams, hundreds of feet below the surface, to reach the fire, raging in the deepest part of the mine. The fire is now under control for the first time, they reported.

At Potts a different situation confronted them. The fire was centered at the top of the veins, near the top of a mountain. Two dams were constructed close to the surface and thousands of gallons of water turned into the flames.

Baby Fawns Born in Zoo.

Durango, Colo., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Two baby fawns, no larger than jackrabbits and about as wild, were born in Durango Zoo recently. The babies, sleek haired and spotted, awed the tourists.

Virile Qualities Displayed In Diplomacy of Webster

Note Sent During Term of President Fillmore Made Requests of Sultan of Muscat, Followed With Emphatic Demand That They Be Granted.

(United Press.)

A document of a day when American diplomacy was young and virile and told foreign potentates that they were going to trade with the United States whether they liked it or not, has been unearthed from a dusty file in the State Department.

It is a note from Millard Fillmore, 13th President, to the Sultan of Muscat, Seyed Syeed Bin. Its flowery language contrasts strangely with the business-like diplomatic correspondence of today, but it packed a punch, and it said in effect:

"Great and good friend, I pray that your days will be many, and they will be many more if, as we desire, you let American ships trade at all Muscat ports, for they are going to anyway and you, great and good friend, are going to like it."

The note bears the date of May 10, 1851, and its effect is to tell the sultan that American ships shall be allowed to trade at all the African and Arabian ports of his great dominions; that American citizens shall enjoy full protection in his sultanate, and that the American flag shall be accorded respect shown those of other, older nations.

No further correspondence, either from the United States Government or the sultan, was found when the Fillmore document came to light. Though the note bears the signature of Fillmore, so ornate is the language in which the sultan is told to be himself that it obviously came not from the pen of the kindly, blue eyed Fillmore but from Daniel Webster, his Secretary of State.

In its pride of the growing size and power of the United States, too, the note is eloquent of Webster.

It was apparent from the note that a diplomatic situation of some distaste had arisen in the then powerful dominions of the Sultan along the Arabian and African shores. The American consul left because he was not shown proper respect; American citizens seemed to have been persecuted; American ships were restricted in their trading.

"I, Millard Fillmore, President of the 31 United States of America," the note began, and said the note was being sent "in the steamship Susquehanna, one of the many hundred ships belonging to this great Nation which float over all seas, bearing to all nations offers of peace and good will and serving * * * also as means of defense and national power."

This idea that the ships could become bad news to unfriendly ports was carried out delicately all through the note, which continued:

"I hope your health is good. I pray that your days may be many, and that your reign may continue to be peaceful, prosperous and glorious and that your shadow may never grow less.

"One of my predecessors, Mr. James Knox Polk, received several letters from you. You often inquired about his health. I am sorry to tell you that he no longer is an inhabitant of the earth. The last President was Gen. Zachary Taylor * * * My heart sinks within me when I tell you that he too has joined the ranks of the immortals."

The sultan was invited to send his ships to American ports—"in the Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico, or those of the new State of California on the Pacific, where the quartz mountains are filled with gold, and the rivers flow over golden beds, and the sands of the ocean shore sparkle with the richest ore." It was pointed out pridefully that America now reached "from one great ocean to the other," and that "from the region of ice which bounds the United States on the north to the flowery land of the orange on the south, is a journey of 100 days, and from the Eastern shores, which receive the first beams of the rising sun, to those of the West, where rest his setting days is 250 days' journey—from the seat of government—I send my commands in a few minutes by the lightning telegraph to all parts of the United States; and they are obeyed." The real point of the note was in the following sentences:

"Great and good prince, how can you think it just that while we open so many hundred ports to you, you should wish to confine us to a single port, or prevent our ships from going to all parts of your dominions. Great and good friend, this can not be."

There is no word, in department files, of the outcome. As there was no succeeding war, it may be assumed the sultan saw the light. Webster died next year, the sultan four years afterward in 1856. His sultanate was split between two sons and dwindled with the years.

Dead Flier's Sister To Make His Flight

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 2 (U.P.). On July 12, 1928, a young Mexican aviator met death in New Jersey while on a good-will trip between Mexico City and New York. Today a dark-eyed senorita is in training here to complete the hop which claimed the life of her brother, Capt. Emilio Carranza.

She is Stella Carranza, 30-year-old sister of the "Lindbergh of Mexico" and a grandniece of former President Carranza, of Mexico. "When I learn to fly," she said, "my ship will be the Capt. Carranza, and my brother will complete his trip in spirit if not in body."

Executive branches of the Georgia State government would be reduced from 102 to 17 departments under a new bill before the Legislature.

Nine Brothers Form Own Baseball Team

Vandegrift, Pa., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The Spaniel baseball nine, Kiski Valley baseball team, is composed of nine Spaniel brothers.

The youngest, 12, has played three years in American Legion junior ball, while the oldest is a veteran semi-pro player. If one of the Spaniel brothers is injured, or the pitcher gets a drubbing, Manager Spaniel calls on a cousin—named Spaniel—for relief work.

Island Shelters Blue Herons.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Perhaps the biggest colony of blue herons on the Atlantic Coast is at Bartlett's Island. The island, a four-acre tract off Indian Point, is owned by Augustus P. Loring, Boston lawyer. On it there are some 500 blue heron nests and, in addition, many nests of the black-crowned heron and of osprey.

WHOLESALE PRICES AT PREWAR LEVEL

Commerce Department Says 1913 Figure Reached in Several Countries.

(Associated Press.)

Wholesale prices throughout much of the world were held yesterday by the Commerce Department to have dropped to prewar levels or lower.

In making public a study of foreign price situation by E. Hundley Omohundro, of the Statistical Research Division, the department said food prices were below the 1913 price level in Italy, Chile, Latvia, Denmark and Belgium. In Austria, Czechoslovakia, the United Kingdom, France and Norway, they were higher.

Higher in Some Countries.

Prices of industrial products were lower in the United Kingdom, France and Italy than in 1913, but higher in Czechoslovakia, Canada, Chile and Germany.

"The most drastic change in wholesale prices since the postwar deflation of 1920-21 began in 1929," said the study.

"Price declines have been world-wide and have attracted considerable attention by reason of the uncertainty engenered by such changes, their effect on long-term obligations and investments and the disturbance of purchasing power.

From 18 to 33 Per Cent.

"In fourteen foreign countries price drops since 1929 have ranged from 18 to 33 per cent. Only a few individual products escaped this sharp downward movement. In many countries prices are now lower than before the war. Owing to differences in methods used in constructing price indexes and the type and number of commodities included, price changes between different countries are only roughly comparable, however.

"In Chile and Egypt prices in June 1931, were from 2 to 3 per cent lower than in 1913; in Belgium, 7.4 per cent lower, and in Italy and Latvia 11.2 per cent and 15 per cent lower respectively. Prices were higher by from 3 to 5 per cent in the United Kingdom and France and from 10 to 13 per cent higher in Austria, Denmark, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Canada."

PRIEST CELEBRATES ORDINATION JUBILEE

25th Anniversary Is Marked by Rev. George J. Marr, of Oxon Hill.

Silver jubilee of the priesthood of the Very Rev. George J. Marr, C. S. C., recently appointed superior of the Bengales Foreign Mission Seminary at Brookland, was celebrated yesterday morning at St. Ignatius Church, Oxon Hill, Md., together with the patronal feast of the church.

Father Marr was ordained into the priesthood 25 years ago at Notre Dame by Bishop Hurth, C. S. C. He celebrated solemn mass at the service in his tribute. The Rev. William J. Carroll, pastor of the church, was deacon and preacher. The Very Rev. Francis J. McBride, superior of Holy Cross College, Brookland, was subdeacon.

The choir of St. Ignatius Church sang mass, with Mrs. Annie Cusick at the organ. John F. Ryan was master of ceremonies and James McConkey censer bearer. Both are from St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, Md.

Grape Crop Loan Settlement Near

$14,000,000 First Asked for California, but Figure Is Cut.

(Associated Press.)

The question of loans to the California grape industry for assistance in marketing the 1931 crop probably will be settled this week by the Federal Farm Board.

The Grape Control Board originally sought $14,000,000, of which $9,000,000 was to be furnished by the board. The remainder was to be supplied by intermediate credit banks.

Heat damage early in July, however, seriously reduced the prospective crop and the amount required to operate a raisin pool for controlling the surplus. It was understood the loan now asked from the board is in the neighborhood of $6,000,000.

An extension of credit and loan of about $350,000 has been agreed upon for the Sun Maid Raisin Co., the marketing agency.

THE ROUTE TO HISTORYLAND

PARADE WILL MARK ARRIVAL OF CIRCUS

101 Ranch Show Troop Will Cover 7-Mile Line of March Today.

"Injuns" on the war path; frontiersmen on the trail; cowboys and cowgirls in thrilling rodeo exhibitions; Cossacks, Arabs and other riders of the Near and Far East in dashing equestrian rallies will entertain in the rectangular big top of the 101 Ranch Real Wild West, the largest show of its kind in the world, at the Union Market grounds, Fourth street and Florida avenue northeast, in a two-days engagement, starting this afternoon. Two performances each day will be given today and tomorrow, at 2 and 8 p. m.

A delegation of twenty Indian chiefs and warriors, connected with the circus, made a pilgrimage yesterday to Arlington Cemetery where a brief ceremony was held over the grave of Joseph Take-The-Shield, an Indian war hero, whose body was among the first to arrive in this country after the World War.

Chief Wolf Mule led his fellow braves and the chiefs and warriors of six tribes in the intonation of the funeral dirge. Chief Eagle Eye and two younger Indians stood poised with bows and arrows while prayer was given. In accordance with Indian ceremony a pair of mocassins and a bow and arrow were placed over the grave. The Indians then visited the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The big show, traveling on two trains of 70-foot steel cars, arrived in the city yesterday at dawn, and the hundreds of people and elephants, camels, buffalo, horses, ponies, oxen, longhorn steers, mules and burros were soon on their way to the lot, where canvas was speedily raised.

Will Stage Big Parade.

The new 101 Ranch street parade, the last big circus "march" left in America, which will take place this forenoon over a 7-mile route, will be vivid with color. Indians, Orientals, foreign riders, cowboys, cowgirls, Cossacks, vaqueros and other mounted folk have gone in for rainbow hues, and they will be almost dazzling on their splendid horses and ponies. Bands, calliopes and tableaux wagons are done in the traditional "gold and glitter." It is promised to be a whopper of a parade.

The horse is king in the 101 Ranch performance this year, and many new displays and spectacles are bound to win admiration, because of the number and beauty of these excellently trained equines.

Equestrian Numbers.

Equestrain numbers are new and novel, and the Wild West and rodeo program is marked by large masses of riders and horses engaged in stirring action. Reckless Billy Keene and Claire Belcher, rodeo champions, head the cowboy and cowgirl contingents. A liberal dash of feature circus displays is notable, not only for the merit of the offerings, but for the contrasting entertainment value added.

The spectacles, including the impressive introductory, "The 193: Assemblage," are of the pulse quickening sort, and they are thrilling. As for the riding—well, the 101 Ranch covers that field like the proverbial blanket.

Reduction of the admission prices to the big show for children under 12 years of age is a feature this year.

Oklahoma Mobilizes Troops for "Oil War"

Oklahoma City, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—State troopers were prepared tonight to mobilize and enforce martial law in Oklahoma's vast oil fields, a move which Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray threatened in order to increase crude oil prices to $1 a barrel.

The picturesque governor previously had announced he would issue the shutdown order Saturday night. The only news today came from Cicero Murray, chairman of the oil States' advisory committee. He said: "Gov. Murray may act Monday to close down all flush fields in the State and declare martial law to enforce his order."

Chiasso, Italy, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—An unexploded hand grenade hidden in straw was found today by a Swiss custom guard who examined a car load of scrap iron sent from France to the iron foundry at Vobarno, in Brescia Province.

101 RANCH SHOWS INDIAN CHIEFS AND FAMILIES

The vanishing American will be well represented in the 101 Ranch Real Wild West Show which begins a two-day stand this afternoon at the Union Market Grounds, Fourth street and Florida avenue northeast. Pictured are some of the Indians and their families with the show, who will also march in the seven-mile parade through the city today.

NATIONALISTS CLAIM SUCCESSES IN CHINA

Reports, if True, Presage Early Downfall of Shih Yu-Shan.

Shanghai, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Reports from both Nanking and Peiping today claimed military successes, which, if true, presage an early collapse of the rebellion of the war lord, Shih Yu-Shan, against the Nationalist government.

The Juomin News Agency asserted that the Shansi troops, loyal to the Nanking government of Chiang Kai-Shek, had catptured the important junction of Shi Chianchuang. The Nationalist general, Liu Chih, who had been pressing northward against Shih Yu-Shan's rear forces, held his troops there. Meanwhile, it was claimed the Manchurians on the northern front drove back the best of Shih's troops as far as Tingchow.

Appearance of Shih's troops at Tingchow was reported to have reversed the position of the northern war lord's lukewarm allies, who were said to be deserting him while he was reported making overtures to both Chang Hsueh Liang, the Manchurian chieftain, and Han Fu-Chu, governor of Shantung province, offering to hand over command of his troops and retire.

Meanwhile, a typhoon reaching a record velocity of 136 miles an hour struck both Hongkong and Canton yesterday, doing much minor damage and relegating political news of the southern rebellion to the background.

There were practically no developments in the political situation except the reappearance here of the veteran general, Hsu Shung-chi, who apparently left again in a huff, as he had previously done when disagreement arose between him and the Cantonese leaders. His office at Canton has been closed and the staff paid off.

GEORGE SAYS SMOOT QUERY CAMOUFLAGE

Stand Is Taken to Cover Up Wide Dissatisfaction, Senator Charges.

(Associated Press.)

Senator George, of Georgia, yesterday charged Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee with attempting to "divert public attention" by his demands that Democratic critics of the Hawley-Smoot tariff specify which rates they would revise.

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, the Georgia Democrat said Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, "would divert public attention from idle money, a surplus of commodities, both raw and manufactured, idle productive capacity, widespread unemployment and the general distress of the people, while the great need exists * * * for an outlet and market."

At the same time Senator George attacked the 77 per cent duty on sugar, and inquired how much of this had been passed on to sugar beet workers, whom he described as "among the most poorly paid agricultural workers in the United States."

Referring to the flexible clause of the tariff act permitting the President to alter duties 50 per cent either way, the Georgian said: "Since the Republican party is against congressional revision in the coming session of Congress, perhaps we may now be specifically informed what may be expected of the President with particular reference to the duty on sugar."

"The effective rate on agricultural products in the act is not more than 10 percent ad valorem," he asserted, "and it is hardly worth while to worry about these rates. Is he (Smoot) unwilling to permit the farmers to test the effectiveness and good faith of his party in writing these rates in the tariff act?"

Burden Is Handed to Dads In New Book on Child Care

Scientifically Prepared Data Take Fathers to Task in Warning Against Rough Romping in Late Afternoon and Near Bedtime.

(Associated Press.)

Dad will be due for discipline if the American home adopts the scientifically prepared preschool child care handbook issued yesterday by the Children's Bureau.

He will have to get his evening romping down to a bedtime story basis, and to nonexciting stories at that, to follow the tenets of the child experts.

"Make bedtime a quiet, happy time without romping or boisterous play," the volume of guidance advises. "By the end of the day, the children are tired, and if romping or teasing is permitted, they easily become overexcited or tense, near to giggling laughter and to tears.

"In many households, the hour before bedtime is the only hour when the father can be with his children, and this often means that he plays vigorously with them, stimulates them to laughter and excitement, tosses and jumps them about, for he wants to see them have a good time.

"Their shrill voices crying, 'Me next, daddy; me next!' show how excited they are. Rough and tumble play has its place, but it does not belong in the late afternoon or the evening.

"The best amusement for bedtime is singing, a quiet game, a story either read or told the children; never a story likely to excite them or inspire fear."

The book generally makes bringing up the children a job for father as well as for mother.

"Many times the mother's efforts to get her child into good habits are made useless by the father's lack of understanding of the situation," is one warning.

On the other hand, specific admonition is made against a mother saying to her child, "I'll give it to you, but don't you tell your father."

Experts of the Children's Bureau, the American Child Health Association, the American Medical Association, the American Pediatric Society and Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital, Cooperstown, N. Y., cooperated in producing the volume which is titled "The Child from One to Six; His Care and Training."

Health habits, care of teeth, prevention of accidents, importance of play, character training and behavior problems are handled in its 150 pages. Comparative height-weight tables and a description of a complete health examination are given as guides.

Rector in Petersburg Will Go to Lynnhaven

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 2.—The Rev. M. E. Travers, rector of Good Shepherd Episcopal Church here, has accepted a call to become rector of the Episcopal Church at Lynnhaven, effective September 1. Mr. Travers' decision came as a surprise to members of his congregation. He has been rector at Good Shepherd a little over a year.

Officials of the Good Shepherd Church and Christ Church, of Walnut Hill, have decided to employ jointly one rector. As a result, Dr. E. R. Carter, rector of Christ Church, will become rector of both Good Shepherd and Christ Church.

Studebaker Free Wheeling makes me want to go places and do things

MOTORING was almost becoming commonplace.

Some men were saying: "I don't care anything about automobiling; I buy a car for transportation!"

Then Studebaker gave us Free-Wheeling and put the thrill back into motoring (and a 15% to 20% saving in oil and gas). Now adults get the same joy out of driving a car that children get out of tobogganing, skating or chuting the chutes.

Motoring is again an OUTDOOR SPORT.

Now that you can buy a Free Wheeling Studebaker for $845, it's perfectly all to buy a car without it—aren't I right?

This $845 Studebaker, by the way, is the lowest priced Six with Free Wheeling as standard equipment—engineered from tip to tail to give you the fullest benefits of Free Wheeling in its finest form.

We Have No Axe To Grind

WHEN comparisons and claims are being made for the relative merits of regular gasolines and special motor fuels--we can be neutral.

For The American Oil Company makes both types--AMOCO-GAS, the original special motor fuel and ORANGE AMERICAN, the finest gas at regular gas price. Here's our platform and advice:

If you choose gas for your car on the basis of initial cost--the price at the pump--buy ORANGE AMERICAN, a better regular gas selling everywhere at regular gas price.

If you want the highest type of operating efficiency, the lowest cost per mile, the maximum power it is possible for your car's motor to deliver--then AMOCO-GAS must be your choice.

Whichever you choose--you can't go wrong!

ON THE UPGRADE.

With the United States Steel Corporation cutting its dividend and, in company with several railroads, reducing all salaries, with no general improvement in the labor situation and even specific instances among minor concerns of wage reductions, what is the explanation of the evident improvement in sentiment with regard to the business outlook?

Evidence of a more optimistic attitude appeared suddenly following the opportune announcement of President Hoover's debt postponement proposal. Subsequent events have convinced the people that satisfactory adjustments are being made. Factors that indicated inherent weakness and declining activity in many lines two years ago have for several months shown, with equal certainty, that a gradual upturn has set in. Students of industry and national affairs, experts in the comparison of present conditions with former depressions, have begun to see the dawn of better days.

Recovery from hard times does not come with the swiftness of a stock market collapse, but the symptoms are unmistakable that liquidations have begun to give way once more to constructive effort and improvement. The Harvard Economic Society states it this way: "Present indications are that the long decline of business volumes ended in the first quarter of the year and that the second quarter saw an approach to recovery." Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who has more reports on trade at his command than any other man, says this country is "obviously coming out of the depression now." He believes that more intelligent gearing of production to consumption will do much to avoid such severe dislocations of business in the future.

Stuart Chase, noted economist, has just published a book on the current situation in which he shows that the present depression is following the course of the usual business cycle and that it feels worse than it really is because the economic world cascaded from such an exalted peak in 1929. "The new era," he says, "was buncombe. The business cycle is as real as ever it was. We are now making the very uncomfortable adjustment to these two facts."

Mr. Chase does not consider the country out of the woods yet, but believes the new era of prosperity will appear within a year, to be followed about 1940 by another depression unless haphazard methods are replaced by scientific industrial planning before then. There is every indication that a very important advance in American production of all kinds will be the result of this costly lesson. And with it will come a better appreciation of the overwhelming importance of the American market.

IMMIGRATION "RACKETS."

Secretary of Labor Doak has been unusually diligent in enforcement of the immigration laws. Under the policy formulated by President Hoover he has actually turned the tide of immigration into emigration. More aliens are leaving the United States than ever before, and fewer are being admitted. Competition between Americans and foreigners for the limited number of jobs available has been substantially reduced.

An investigation under the special direction of Secretary Doak has revealed an immigration "racket" in New York. Aliens who are in this country illegally have been obtaining permits to go abroad and return by forging the names of aliens who are legally here. In some cases these permits are believed to have been used to smuggle into the country aliens who have never been here before. Secretary Doak has begun a Nation-wide investigation to put a stop to this practice wherever it is used.

Thus another weak place in the barrier erected against undesirable aliens is mended. Aliens are finding it more difficult every day to enter the United States illegally and to remain here without the sanction of the law. In spite of the wailings of the so-called "liberals" the immigration laws are being rigorously enforced.

It is surprising that the friends of alien lawbreakers are silent about this most recent racket. Why do they not denounce the Labor Department's investigation as un-American? Nearly every move the department makes to rid the country of undesirables meets with a fusillade of criticism from these "liberal-minded" individuals and organizations. Do they mean to leave alien forgers and smugglers to the mercy of the law without raising their voices in protest? It might be well for the Labor Department to extend its investigation far enough to determine whether there is a connection between these propaganda machines and the plots of aliens to evade the law.

SPAIN'S FINE EXAMPLE.

Spain is giving her Latin-American offspring an example in orderly establishment of popular rule that should not be lost upon them. Following their revolt against the Spanish monarchy the Latin-American republics have continued, through more than a century to be torn by civil strife at frequent intervals, too often the result of mere personal ambition rather than for any great principle at stake.

It can not yet be said that Spain has established her new republic upon a firm and lasting foundation. But the action of the Cortes last week, in fact the entire course of events leading in swift succession to the creation of the popular assembly, has evidenced a rare combination of determination and restraint notwithstanding the brief outbreak of church riots.

In the first place, Spanish Republicans waited until elections had demonstrated the strength of the opposition to monarchial rule. The evidence was so overwhelming that King Alfonso abandoned his throne upon the mere presentation of the facts. He was immediately succeeded by men who had worked and suffered for the cause of democracy. They issued no grandiloquent pronunciamentos, but at once established fundamental liberties and set about the formation of a constitutional government. The freely chosen representatives of the Spanish people are prepared to determine the form of future government.

Approval of the acts of President Zamora and his provisional government has been considered a certainty for some time, but the result, upon final ballot, was a surprise. The question of a vote of confidence was debated for two days. When the final vote was taken the affirmative motion was presented in writing by the eighteen minority parties and was adopted by acclamation. Not only was the provisional government approved, but sanction was given the sweeping reforms that had been instituted, such as freedom of worship, free speech and reorganization of the army.

It may be too soon to say that Spain has avoided all strife in the establishment of her new government, but such an exhibition of cooperation by all parties is a good augury for the harmonious settlement of difficult questions that will confront the Cortes in the formation of the constitution. These problems include demands for autonomous statehood by Catalonia and other provinces. However there appears to be little opposition to these regional ambitions for local rule and there is every reason to believe that differences arising in the Cortes on specific issues can at least be settled in regular parliamentary procedure.

FEDERAL COOPERATION.

Following a strenuous month of successful effort to avoid the impending collapse of Germany and the inevitable repercussion upon this country and all nations, President Hoover turned his attention to the coordination of plans for relief of the unemployed during the coming winter. It is evident that whatever improvement may be experienced by American industry during the ensuing months of this year, unemployment will continue to be a serious problem. Even if the number of unemployed is not increased, more people will need assistance during the winter months because reserve funds have been largely exhausted.

The President's conferences with the chairman of the Red Cross and various other agencies of relief are by no means an indication that there will be any departure from the administration's positive and commendable stand that relief measures are essentialy the duty of local and State agencies. There is no relaxation in opposition to anything approaching the nature of a Federal dole. Coordination of the work of the many elements available for help, organization well in advance, avoiding duplications and conflicts and harmonizing all these efforts with such activities as have been provided by congressional appropriation, are among the invaluable contributions emanating from the White House conferences.

In addition to the formulation of campaigns for extensive aid to the needy when cold weather sets in, the more immediate troubles of the farmers of the Northwest, stricken by drought and an invasion of grasshoppers, are to be relieved. Some $15,000,000 remains from the drought fund of last year. The Department of Agriculture will utilize it as was done in Arkansas and other States which suffered a year ago, in combatting not only the present ravages of insect pests, but also taking effective measures to prevent another visitation.

Some politicians would plunge the Nation into a myriad of unwarranted responsibilities, all centering in raids upon the Treasury. President Hoover demonstrates sound judgment in rendering a full measure of assistance in all essential relief work while avoiding a course that would set up a great bureau in Washington for the dispensation of charity to the States and the people.

TRADE WITH THE ORIENT.

Despite the present depression and revolutions in China fast, new cargo ships are being built by France, Norway, England and Germany as well as this country for the trade between the United States and countries of the Pacific. Never has there been such shipbuilding activity in times of peace with an eye exclusively on one ocean trade line, says Royal D. Marks, of the University of California. This development, he believes, denotes that the era of Pacific trade has arrived, and that before many years ships will be thickly strewn across the Pacific as they are at present on the North Atlantic.

Possibilities of commerce with the Orient are at present incalculable. The billion people that go to make up Asia constitute a market of tremendous extent. A slight increase in the buying power of so vast a number would create a field for many products from this country. At present butter, canned milk, apples, oranges, fresh and dried fruits have a well-established market in the Orient, while ice cream from California is bought as cheaply and is much superior to the native product.

Fresh milk is also exported to the Eastern countries and arrives in perfect condition. Although fine dairy cattle have been imported in China the habits of the people are such that the dairy business can not be maintained at American standards. For this reason the importation of milk is a growing business in Chinese coast cities.

In addition to these perishable commodities manufactured products have gained a foothold in the East. Five airplanes were imported by China for mail and passenger service a few weeks ago. Six more have since been ordered by the Chinese government for its own uses. Difficulties of transportation to many parts of the continent create a demand for airplanes that will doubtless develop into a large market in time.

At present the Chinese government is planning railroads in various parts of the country. While the construction of highways is slow, automobiles are rushing about on roads that might look impassable to an American driver. Motor trucks and buses have invaded the country and in some sections regular motor lines are maintained.

The widespread civil warfare and Communist depredations are interfering with China's development and foreign business more than cheap silver and economic conditions combined. But if China escapes bolshevism, no matter how Nanking and Canton settle present difficulties, the country will be dominated by a younger generation with Western ideas, which may effect amazing changes among China's many millions.

THEORY OF MAN'S ORIGIN

From the Boston Transcript.

From a single fossil skull discovered in the desert wilds of Central Australia, Sir Colin MacKenzie deduces the fact—or at least the conclusion—that "the erect posture dominates man's intellectual system, and shows that all intellectual development has a muscular basis." At first glance it is a little difficult to perceive how a skull which is not a whole skull, but only a portion of one, and which is supposed to be, and probably is, a relic of a primitive kind of human being, can teach the scientist all that. It takes a good equipment of imagination to understand it. We must first imagine the creature from which man is descended going on all fours. He had not yet assumed the erect position. He was then like any other beast of the jungle. Any bigger beast might tread him to death under its feet. Mastery was a matter of size. But one day, the beast, groveling in the tall grass, through some accident, or freak, or the help of a stump or a rock, gets upon his hind legs. In that position he sees above the grass. He is enabled to observe the approach of the possible mastodon who will grind him to death, and to hide from him. With this incident, this groveling creature's relative advance begins. From that time on, he and his species struggle toward the maintenance of an erect position. They employ craft; they learn a superior mode of physical progression, and thereby they attain a superiority over other creatures.

A step surely resulting from this point is the liberation of the creature's forelegs from the function of progression and their gradually increased usefulness in providing easier means of subsistence. With practice, now, the creature's front paws become hands. By development, one of the paw-projections which once were mere claws becomes a thumb, which by repeated use becomes opposed to the other claws—now fingers—so that the creature can seize and hold any article. Now the animal who is on the road to become a man has achieved a point of superiority to the ape, all of whose "fingers" are in a row—who does not possess the opposed thumb. Counting by thousands of centuries, the new "man" now gets beyond the ape by leaps and bounds. Without the opposed thumb the "man" would have remained in the half erected, or only occasionally erected position of the ape. Together, the erect posture and the opposed thumb made man the master of his own evolution.

Of course at the stage noted the "mind" is yet to come. But it is now an inevitable thing, for the improvement achieved makes the newly developed species gregarious. Superior individuals learn to dominate their fellows. Communication becomes necessary. Language is developed from grunts and squeaks. Society is organized. Thoughts are expressed. Thus from the bones and muscles of the legs, from the bones and muscles of the hands, an "intellectual development" has been evolved. The great thing was to get started, and the start was the erect posture.

"Quod erat demonstrandum," says the professor. But of course all this is not a demonstration. It is only a speculation. Sir Colin MacKenzie's notion about the dependence of intellectual development on muscle is pure Lamarckianism. Lamarck was a French naturalist who was born in 1744 and died in 1829. He was the forerunner of Darwin, who accepted his doctrine of "acquired characters." What Lamarck taught is concentered in his account of the manner in which the giraffe acquired his long neck. An ordinary antelope who lived in a South African region where, from increasing aridity, food for the antelope on the earth's surface disappeared, could graze only at the tops of trees. Such individual beasts as had the longest necks could reach food and survive. Those individuals survived when their shorter-necked fellows perished; it was they who propagated their species, which became increasingly long-necked. The primitive man, getting on his feet in the tall grass, is practically doing the same thing that Lamarck's giraffe did.

Sir Conlin MacKenzie's deductions from the discovery of the skull in the Australian desert demonstrate that Lamarck is coming to his own in the field of evolutionary science. They demonstrate nothing else—that is, as yet.

Germany hesitates to accept the offer of long-time credits for wheat and cotton, hoping a bonus may be offered to have it taken off our hands.

It took two fellows to have the nerve to say Coolidge wanted to be drafted in 1932. At least the papers said it was a Coupal.

The Governor of Wyoming asks the President to stabilize the price of oil in that State. We are also going to get Mr. Hoover to make our butcher sell us porterhouse at half price.

Don't let any one tell you the American air service is backward. Regular lines fly twice as many miles on schedule in a year as those of all the rest of the world combined.

Mr. Smythe took two columns to tell what was the matter with the Virgin Islands. His statement that there were seven daily newspapers for a population of 20,000 was enough.

If Russia would let the rest of the world alone and quit her alarmist cries of "capitalistic attack," she could Soviet herself in peace and poverty forever unmolested.

If the deletion delirium regarding Cornwallis' surrender had been carried on in a sixth grade debate it would have been too silly to notice.

Another Wickersham report charges "general failure" to police. Wonder what organization will have to be apologized to this time.

Some countries find the ease with which Uncle Sam makes big loans almost insulting.

If Senator Norris doesn't say something pretty soon the nervous tension will be something terrible.

Gov. Ritchie might accept a presidential nomination, but he is not catering to Progressive support when he makes a rousing speech for "less government in business."

The value of American silver mined last year was a little less than $20,000,000, or enough to supply the income of the United States for two hours.

We can think of nothing finer for fomenting disputes and trips to the police station than varying taxi fares for different hours and weather conditions.

Italian agreement with Germany in drastic disarmament plans would, of course, contain no idea of emphasizing the heavy armament stand of France.

SOUND AND SMELL.

It is a curious thing that Chicago should be compelled to add sound to smell for the purpose of making its citizens "meat conscious." But such is the case, according to the Vancouver Province. A vast carnival has been held to boost the meat industry of that city. One has always supposed, and it has been so advertised, that the perfume of the stockyards was sufficient to make and keep any city meat conscious.

Here again you have the result of divergent campaigns and of high-pressure salesmanship returning upon itself to gum up sections of a Nation's industries. While meat was the standard food of man all was well. But of recent years the slogans about eating more fish, the cries of the fruit vendors and the inroads of the specialists in nuts and celery have divided up the profits.

The human stomach will only hold a certain amount at a certain time and if you are pulled this way and that by people who all want you to fill it with something different it is obvious that they can not all prosper.

While Men Obey a Master, They Must Share the Master's Guilt

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE American idealist fools himself about Russia, as he does in other matters.

He pictures the Russian people as simple, well-meaning folk long abused by masters, and now at last, free as Americans are, laboring happily to win the advantages and establish the high standards to which Americans are accustomed.

It is a pretty picture, but contains little truth.

There are two Russias, and the truth about them may be learned by all who can read.

One Russia, the forty to one majority, is composed of peasants who outnumber the whole population of the United States. They are scattered over a vast territory; desire land above all else; possess little if any education, and neither understand nor sympathize with the dreams of their rulers.

This Russia is pictured clearly and without bias in "Humanity Uprooted," a book written by a native Russian, now living in America, who has visited the land of his birth several times since the revolution.

The other Russia is the political-industrial minority that rules. It is the city Russia, kept in power by the army. It is the Russia that teaches atheism, murders the gentry, steals patents and property and condemns to death all who are suspected of opposing it.

This is the Russia revealed by its own press stories and by the records that are history.

It represents the true Russia little better than the "carpetbag" rulers represented the South during the period of reconstruction.

Yet it is official Russia; the one with which the world must deal; the one the world must judge.

Its friends in America ask: "How can it harm anybody by 'dumping' goods when the land and factories don't produce enough for home consumption?"

It disregards home needs. It sells products abroad while its own people suffer for want of them. It sells because it must have gold to finance its schemes. And by selling below the world price it demoralizes the market.

How can it hurt competitors, when it sells so little? Precisely as the Farm Board, holding a fraction of the cotton crop ready to dump at any moment, makes buyers afraid to buy and thus keeps the price unnaturally low.

But that, say Russia's friends, is fair competition. And it gives work to all, for the government is crying for more laborers.

Don't let the cry fool you. Workers are scarce in town because the peasants, though treated as privates in a military organization, still prefer their measure of country freedom to the slavery and starvation rations of mine and factory.

There is no freedom in Russia.

And in official Russia there is no honor or mercy, but only scorn of God, theft, murder, untruth and enmity of all that makes America great.

You may sympathize with Russians. You can not befriend official Russias if you know the truth.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

A Bid for Nomination?

New York Times.

Newton D. Baker's address at the opening of the Institute of Politics in Williamstown yesterday had been awaited with a certain artificial interest. There were whispers and flutters about his speech as a possible bid for the Presidency. Often mentioned as perhaps a Democratic nominee next year, what more natural than that he should seize the occasion to get himself before the country as a political thinker and leader. But these "superfluities of naughtiness," inevitable as they are in a country which subdues everything to the color of politics, may well be put aside in Mr. Baker's case.

Popular Sovereignty.

Kansas City Times.

A disgruntled Republican leader says we ought to find a man with Lincoln ideals and elect him President. But the trouble with that is that there might be too many men with Jefferson ideals standing in the way.

Aiding Roosevelt.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

One of Bishop Cannon's aids warns the Democrats against Roosevelt; that ought to make the New Yorker's nomination possible.

He's Always in Session.

Atlanta Constitution.

Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart still contends that he should be called into extra session. What! All of him at once?

Promises Are Futile.

Hibbing (Minn.) Tribune.

Pretty much everybody agrees that the mounting burden of taxation threatens the very existence of our Government. At least taxation is a most serious problem, and the evils which flow from excessive taxation are growing constantly greater, for taxation is steadily growing more and more excessive. The American people as a whole are doing two things, demanding greater and greater expenditures of public moneys, and trying more and more frantically to push taxation off on to some one else. The voter who gives his adherence to politicians who promise to relieve him from taxation is the greatest sinner of us all, politically and economically. That he is in a large measure responsible for bad times is unquestionable.

Instinctive Reaction.

Minneapolis Journal.

A biography of William H. Taft says that he had the art of "falling asleep in the midst of a conversation with a senator." Taft was a great man.

Good Judgment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Fan Laments Poor Sportsmanship and Police Interference in Recent Wrestling Bout.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent excitement at Griffith Stadium during the Londos-Dusek bout, should serve as a lesson to the police force of Washington as well as to many fans who attended the bout.

Thousands witnessed that a policeman, as the bout was over, jumped into the ring and threatened the winner, Jim Londos. The eager crowd, encouraged by the policeman's foolish action, went almost wild. Since that evening I have listened to all sorts of stories here and there, and I have read sports pages of many papers of other cities, and reviewing the situation as a true citizen I came to the conclusion that either some of the policemen do not understand their duty, which is a shock to the dignity of the Nation's Capital, or the Washingtonians who attended the wrestling match July 17 proved to be very poor sports.

Suppose that there was a strangle hold. Was it the policeman's duty to determine the legality or the nature of the hold, or the referee's? The Baltimore Sun writes: "A policeman jumped into the ring a few minutes before Jim Londos threw Rudy Dusek. The cop claimed Londos used a strangle hold. Imagine a Washington policeman knowing the difference between a strangle hold and a flying mare! We wonder who told him what it was all about."

If we want to be proud of our city as the Nation's Capital, then such things must be remedied. It is up to the authorities to note those things. It is up to the Washingtonians to prove that they are good sports.

WILLIAM A. REVIS.

Illusions of "Personal Liberty" Are Pointed Out by Veteran Observer for Benefit of "Rowdy" Sets.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of July 20 we have a graphic picture of "Rowdy America," in the department of "Wives of Tomorrw." There are suggestions in that picture for a long train of serious thought.

Is the average American half civilized? Does he have any proper appreciation of our dearly bought American liberty?

Whatever may be the status of the average, certainly the ones of whom "Grandmother" writes have not made much start toward civilization; nor have they learned to use wisely the liberty they have inherited. What a pity!

It takes some of us a long time to learn that so-called "personal liberty" is a myth. Yet it is behind this myth that these rowdy sets try to shield themselves. "We'll do as we please." They have never learned that no one has the right, or liberty, to indulge himself at the expense, or to the annoyance, of others.

These rowdy people are deluded—so deluded as to believe they are showing superiority by their bad conduct. They need somebody to get close to them and lead them to better ways of living.

In the meantime there is work in this connection for a very large motorcycle squad. Decent people should be protected in their outings from such rude treatment.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TURNING THE TABLES.

When the world was young and the books were few and tales were simply told,
The children listened with willing ears to the babblings of the old.
Then father or mother could raise a ghost to frighten the kids to bed,
For seldom a child grew wise enough to doubt what his parents said.
So they followed this method for years and years until into this line it grew:
"The bogey man will carry you off if you don't mind what you do."
If a boy talked back in those bygone days or fought for his little whim,
With threats of ogres and witches wild they frightened it out of him.
They'd pack him to bed with his nerves on edge alone in the dark to lie
With the sweet assurance that if he cried a horrible death he'd die,
And he'd cover his head with the blankets thick, ashiver from head to toe,
For the night was a horrible time to the young in that ignorant long ago.
But it's different now, for the ghosts are gone and the ogres are no more——
It's the old today who sit in fear of the terrible modern lore—
For the youngsters laugh at the fears we raise. If a cautioning word he spoke
They say: "Oh, yeah! We have heard that line, but it's dead as a last month's joke!"
Father and mother are trembling now whenever the youngsters roam,
And they lie in their beds till 4 a. m. and shiver till they come home.
Now the boys talk back with a wisecrack smart and the daughter laughs at fears,
If we brought out a ghost to frighten them they'd tickle his ribs and ears.
By the ogres of dread our nerves are frayed for most of our time is spent,
Whenever they're out in the car alone with visions of accident.
Oh! the grown-ups frightened the children once, but it now appears as if
The tables had turned and these modern kids are scaring their parents stiff.

Lively Chase Through Town Fails in Capture of Suspects.

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., Aug. 2.—Howard N. Davis, Easton merchant, was held up by two colored men in front of his home this morning about 1 o'clock, forced into an automobile and driven to his store about four blocks. Here he was compelled to open the safe and hand over about $180 in cash.

Sheriff A. R. Carroll was called, and when he reached the scene, he was told that Archie Camper and Frank Yale Campbell, both colored, had staged the holdup. A lively chase was made about town, the sheriff reaching the home of Campbell in time to see him jump out of the window and escape. Curley Stamford and Emerson Camper, both colored, are in the Easton Jail charged with taking the suspects to Cambridge early this morning.

The Davis gun and a suit case packed with clothes were found in Campbell's house, both of which are now in the sheriff's possession. The car used in the holdup has also been seized. All roads leading out of Cambridge are watched.

Garretts Plan Visit to Home At Baltimore

Envoy to Italy and Wife Will Spend Several Months in U. S.

Friends of the United States Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. John W. Garrett in Washington will receive with delight the news that the envoy and his charming wife will return to this country in the early fall to reopen their Baltimore residence, Evergreen House, where they plan to spend several months.

Having had a strenuous spring and summer season in Rome, the Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett are returning to this country in September for a much-needed rest at their spacious home in the Monumental City.

The Garretts, over a period of several weeks, have been central figures in a round of entertaining. They were hosts to the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson during their recent visit to Rome, when fetes honoring the American statesman and his wife followed one another in rapid succession. The Garretts are spending midsummer on the Island of Capri, where they have leased a villa.

During their visit to Baltimore they plan to avoid any large social functions, wishing complete rest from the obligations of the social world.

Gala Holiday Atmosphere at South Resort

Great Influx of Visitors Reported at Virginia Beach.

Special to The Washington Post.

Virginia Beach, Va., August 2.—With the arrival of an unprecedented influx of motoring vacationists Virginia Beach has taken on a gala holiday atmosphere. Gayly colored umbrellas, bright pajama clad bathers, gaudy cabanas and colored night lights make this a veritable Lido.

One of the most interesting social events of the season is the forthcoming bridge and tea dance next Friday at the Cavalier Beach Club. It is given for the benefit of the Infants' Sanitarium and is the second annual affair to be held here.

A great many vacationists are arriving by airplane and local airplane sightseeing trips are proving a boon to the owners, bringing a capacity business to a not so long ago outdoor pastime that was constantly on the red side of the ledger.

Count and Countess Guilio di Gropello and Nobile Carlo Loard, of the Royal Istalian Embassy at Washington, have been recent guests at the Cavalier Hotel.

New York arrivals at the Cavalier include Mrs. D. Ward Piessett; Dr. Eugene Bain. Ira F. Campbell, Rosalie Hettleman, Dudley Onderdonk, Edward R. Arnold, Lacey F. Johnson, F. G. Sherry, Marshall F. Belgian Envoy Spends August On Chesapeake

Countess de Buissert Has Cottage of Uncle on Severn River.

The Belgian Ambassador, M. Paul May, following the lead of his predecessor, Prince de Ligne, is spending the remainder of the summer near Washington. The latter frequented Gibson Island, Md., but Ambassador May decided on a cottage on Chesapeake Bay, near Annapolis, which he has leased for the month of August. He took possession of it several days ago.

Annapolis, always claiming its place in the sun of social events, both winter and summer, delights in playing host this season to a pretty countess from Belgium, Countess Beatrix de Buissert, sister of Count Francois de Buissert, who is second secretary of the Belgian embassy.

The fair daughter of royalty, who came to the United States with her brother when he assumed his post, is occupying the cottage of her uncle, Mr. John P. Story. It was there in a little corner of the estate, Whitehall, overlooking the Severn River, that Countess de Buissert entertained a few days ago the Belgian Ambassador, who made the trip to Annapolis with her brother.

Although Mr. Story sold Whitehall several years ago he retained a picturesque little guest house which is now the retreat of the countess, seeking relief from the heat of the Capital.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A BOY and a girl from the District of Columbia will play the leading parts in a radio celebration of the success of the "Envoys of Friendship" tour of France and England this afternoon, from 2 to 2:30 o'clock over Station WMAL and a Columbia network.

The boy and girl, Thomas J. Hayes and Dorothy Skirm, each 17 years old, will tell of the adventures of the group of eleven boys and girls who went to Europe under the auspices of the United States Flag Association to create a basis for lasting international friendship.

Miss Skirm and Mr. Hayes were the winners of an essay contest sponsored by The Washington Post to choose representatives of the Nation's Capital on the tour. They wrote essays on "The Typical American Boy" and "The Typical American Girl."

The radio program is at the regular time of the broadcast of the United States Army Band. The eleven boys and girls were chosen from all parts of the United States and gathered in Washington last June 11 to start the journey abroad. While there they met the Prince of Wales, the Lord Mayor of London and many other notables. The journey took three weeks.

CONFIDENTIAL advices from abroad, reaching Richard H. Waldo, president of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, visiting here last week, are that the French have about completed the development of a remarkable new television set. They believe it is ahead of anything yet devised, and when revealed that it will surprise the entire world.

An attempt to broadcast from a record underwater depth will be made by Ted Husing when he descends within a new type of diving apparatus to the floor of Long Island Sound tomorrow afternoon (WMAL, 3:30 p. m.) On Wednesday at the same hour another broadcast is scheduled.

PLANS for the distribution of $10,000 in awards to five American composers producing the best original orchestral works, to be submitted by Thursday, December 31, 1931, have been completed by the N. B. C.

The composition receiving first award will be offered over nationwide networks on February 22, 1932, coincident with international recognition and celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

The awards are as follows: first, $5,000; second, $2,500; third, $1,250; fourth, $750, and fifth, $500. Full details may be obtained from the broadcasting company.

IF anyone has any doubts as to the developments in the field of radio legislation, both interpretations and proposals, he should take a glance at the 117-page report of the Standing Committee on Radio Communications to the American Bar Association, written by its chairman, Louis G. Caldwell, former chief counsel of the Federal Radio Commission.

The report points out among other things that the Radio Commission is gaining censorship authority over radio programs through court interpretation despite the denial of such power in the Radio Act.

The Real Folks cast will hold their third birthday party in the WJZ studios tonight, 8:30 o'clock.

A concert of works by Camille Saint-Saens will be played by the Roxy Symphony Orchestra tonight (WRC, 7 o'clock).

Sometimes it is very easy to tell over the radio from what section of the country a speaker hails. Again it is extremely difficult.

One of the most perfect New England accents, for instance, is that of a high official who—though he does not reveal the fact in his biographical sketch in the Congressional Directory—was born and raised in La Porte, Ind.

THE world's largest and finest broadcasting studios are those of the National Broadcasting Co. in Chicago. Niles Trammel, a courteous and soft-spoken Southerner who hails from Georgia, vice president of the NBC, in charge of this magnificent layout, feared at first that it was too big even for Chicago. However, the Midwestern business has increased in such astounding proportions, and Chicago is so rapidly forging ahead as a broadcasting center, that already the new quarters are not too ample.

In all of the travels of Sir John Reith, head of the British Broadcasting Co., who was in this country recently, is said to have remarked that the Chicago NBC studios surpassed anything he had seen anywhere.

Unique is the "memorial wreath" fund, now reaching substantial proportions, at Station KFUO, of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Concordia Theological Seminary in St. Louis.

"A memorial wreath is a donation of money instead of flowers," Rev. Herman Hohenstain, director of the station explains, "in memory of a deceased relative or friend as a gift for the church. We hope to purchase a studio organ out of the KFUO memorial-wreath fund at some future time."

Toys Enable Court To Speed Up Trials

Decatur, Ill., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—When trials involving automobile or street car accidents are called in the court of Justice Fred Hoyt here he gets down a special array of miniature articles designed to speed up such procedures.

The articles consist of miniature automobiles, trucks and street cars and even pedestrians. By moving the objects around the various witnesses are able to describe accurately all of their testimony.

The Ells Have It.

Jan Interprets the Mode

Brilliant green wool coat for early Autumn days with odd collars and cuffs of sheared brown caracul and a brown suede belt. (Courtesy of Maggy Rouff, Paris.)

New York, Aug. 2.

'NWE don't always look to Europe, either, for our smart sports events! Newport needed no foreign inspiration for the gala start of the international yacht races—but the lovely and fashionable women who attended in such numbers had the smart and "soignes" appearances that certainly suggested the Haute Couture of Paris, and intensive study of Parisian styles.

The spectators of this thrilling event were divided into two classes, one as smart as the other—those who watched the start from land, and those who followed the start of the race in boats. Naturally, the clothes worn by both factions differed greatly—though the clothes worn by both were, as I have said, extremely fashionable and lovely.

On land, my deahs, the most exquisite and cool and fragile printed chiffons were most popular—and never have I seen so many or such gracefully unusual large, shady hats! These hats were of lace or woven straw but transparent fabrics such as organdie and tulle and malines were conspicuously absent! People who summer near the sea know that the more lovely the sheer the organdie or tulle or malina is, the more likely it is to melt and droop in the moist, salty air. On land, too, there were lace, georgette or brilliantly hued bat crepe frocks—seaside dwellers know that an organdie or taffeta faille frock fares no better at the shore than does a maline hat!

'N' on the boats, every costume fitted smartly into its sea-going role. White skirts, pleated or divided into trouser skirts, navy blue jackets and twinkling brass buttons—all these swaggered under the sun in their appropriate and feminine way!

• • • •

That coat for just before cold weather is a problem, now isn't it? We can't go out in summery looking light flannels or tweeds, and we certainly have no intention of bundling ourselves into winter wraps before the thermometer just up and insists on it! And Maggy Rouff must have realized just exactly how we feel about it, and then designed the very smart coat that I sketch for you today. This is of bright green novelty wool, with clever shoulders and diagonal incrustations—'n' a perfectly adorable way of letting one of the incrustations break loose into a roomy pocket. And for fur, it's trimmed with a tabscarf collar and huge cuffs of bright brown, and sheared caracul! the brown suede belt with the tab ends completes a stunnnig picture.

• • • •

If you like bright colored wraps, the between-season period of late summer and early autumn is the time to indulge your tastes!

• • • •

And if you like modernistic jewelry—as who doesn't—here's a ring and belt buckle of ivory, onyx and blue crystal that I'll bet you couldn't resist!

• • • •

How would you like to have all the fascination of a Lady of the Harem—and none of the disadvantages that attend her? Wel-l-l-l, that's just what you will have—if you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, telling you how to make the adorable Harem nightie-pyjama!

Dare's weekly letter is interesting. Watch for it in Sunday's Post.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

SETTING OUT MORE IRIS.

WHILE many plants may be as readily transplanted in the spring as in the fall, late summer and early autumn is the only time suitable for the iris, as they should not be moved until after their blooming season and after their tops begin to wither. This gives them a long season to get settled in in their new home and insures a plentiful supply of blooms the following season.

The iris is quite easy to plant. Any amateur can do the work successfully. Remember at all times not to cover the creeping stems; always leave half in and half out. The iris does not take kindly to crowding. It really makes few demands on our time, requesting only a daily drink of water during its growing periods.

These flowers are easy to grow and small enough to permit us to have a number of different kinds in even a tiny garden, so that it is impossible not to be stirred by the great surge of interest in their development. All of us, with even a yard of ground at our disposal, want at least a few iris.

It is wise when purchasing these plants to ask questions and understand just what kind you are getting. Find out whether they are German, Japanese or Spanish varieties.

You may plant most of the Japanese varieties in late summer, provided you have good roots, and in the flowering season may expect a wealth of blossoms. By the second summer you will have immense clumps, giving hundreds of flowers, some of them measuring 12 inches across.

While the Japanese varieties generally succeed in all soils, they thrive best in deep, rich loam. The Japanese are the varieties with flat blooms. They also have narrow leaves and small, compact rhizomes. They delight in water when in bloom, but not at other times during the year. Never select these varieties for a limestone soil.

The German or bearded iris are quite different in appearance from the Japanese varieties. These are the sturdy kinds that get along best when left to themselves. They are absolutely hardy in any part of the country. The German varieties bloom in May, before many of the common garden perennials are in bloom; therefore they will fill their own niche. When planting any of these sorts see that the growing part of the crown protrudes from the soil; only when established should this be entirely covered.

The Spanish iris like a warm, rich soil and plenty of moisture.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF AUGUST 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10:45 a. m., from 2:50 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7:10 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 1:50 p. m. and from 4:15 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

August 3, according to astrological indications, will be a day of negative results. Much will be attempted, but little accomplished. "Running around in circle" will be the lot of those who do not stick simply to routine. In the evening, better conditions will prevail, and will favor social amenities.

A child born on this August 3 will be handicapped, at the very outset of its career, by an extremely wilful nature. Strong discipline will be required to eradicate this evil. It will not be lacking in intelligence nor in perspicacity. Its obsession for having its own way, unless cured, will spoil its prospects of either success or happiness.

If you were born on August 3, you have a likable—albeit weak—nature. You follow, in everything, the path of least resistance, and, shying at obstacles and difficulties, pursue a life of more or less easy contentment, without a wish to fight or to wrestle. Others, realizing your weakness, take unfair advantage of you, and in this way, rob you of any success you could achieve. You are a great reader, but what you absorb, as a result of this, does not in any way change your outlook on life. You simply can not be aroused to realize that there is anything except hum-drum existence.

You are not without fighting weapons. You have intelligence, a keen mind, and a fair vision. All these, however, are of no avail, without the will to conquer. This, in your case, is conspicuous by its absence. Your disposition is easy going. You are capable of a sincere affection, but will never be the victim of love's thrills.

You have a strong religious streak in your make-up. In the old days, however, you would have been a "Vicar of Bray," never a Cranmer. You are affable and agreeable, agreeing with most people, and differing from none. In your home, you will never rule, but will be dominated by your mate.

Successful people born August 3:
Stanley Baldwin, English prime minister.
Elisha G. Otis, elevator inventor.
Lord Aberdeen, former governor general of Canada.
Francis Delafield, physician.
Jeremiah Day, president of Yale.

Culbertson on Contract

By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

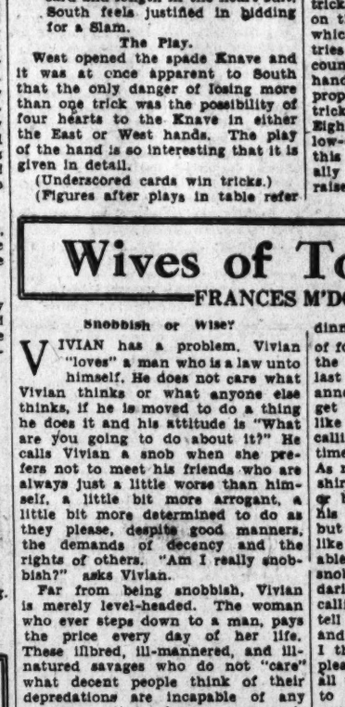
48
AN INTERESTING GRAND COUP.

THE grand coup at Bridge is an interesting and spectacular play. It might be described briefly as discarding a superfluous trump on a winning card in the Dummy hand. The purpose of the play is, of course, to shorten the trumps in the Declaring hand to the same number as those held by the right hand adversary and to place the lead in Dummy so that on the twelfth trick a card may be led through him and his otherwise winning trump picked up.

The play is comparatively rare, not so much because the trump situations, in which the Declarer finds himself poor because of his trump length are unusual but because these situations are not generally coupled with ability to lead winners from the Dummy and find the Dummy rich enough in reentries to permit reentry at the critical moment.

This hand was held in a rubber game, in which Mrs. Culbertson was seated North and I was playing South.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)
The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	3NT	Pass
6♥(1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North's jump bid of three notrump has shown a minimum of 3 honor tricks, which must include at least two of the Aces in the playing suits. With the top card and length in the heart suit, South feels justified in bidding for a Slam.

The Play.

West opened the spade Knave and it was at once apparent to South that the only danger of losing more than one trick was the possibility of four hearts to the Knave in either the East or West hands. The play of the hand is so interesting that it is given in detail.

(Underscored cards win tricks.)
(Figures after plays in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

No.	West	North	East	South
1	♠J	♠Q	♠3	♠2
2	♥6	♥10	♥2	♥A
3	♠4	♥5	♥2	♥K (1)
4	♦8	♦3	♦A	♦K (2)
5	♠5	♠A	♠3	♠K
6	♦7	♦4 (3)	♦2	♥4
7	♠5	♠10!! (4)	♠4	♠3
8	♦9	♦5	♦3	♥2
9	♣Q	♣A	♣3	♣5
10	♠6	♦Q	♦10	♣K
11	♠7	♦J	♣9	♣7
12	♠8	♣J (5)	♥7	♥9
13	♠10	♣2	♥J	♥Q

1—East has J 7 of hearts and South Q 9 3 4. North and West have no more. The only chance now is to get rid of four and eight of hearts by ruffing in twice and, at the same time, manouver for a position in which the twelfth lead will come from North through East's J 7 of hearts and up to South's Q 9 of heart tenace.

2—First step in the preparation for Grand Coup.

3—The play of the Queen and Knave of diamonds followed by a low diamond would have been fatal. East, when unable eventually to follow diamond leads, discards a club, preventing South from getting in North's hand with a club reentry.

4—A beautiful play. North needs two reentries for the Grand Coup—one in order to ruff another club and another reentry in order to lead eventually through East's J 7 of hearts up to the Q 9 of hearts. Hence the "unnecessary" finesse.

5—The Grand Coup position is established, checkmating East at the twelfth and thirteenth leads.

Today's Pointer.
Notrump Valuation.

In notrump bids the winning of tricks with low cards depends largely on the number of honor-tricks held, which are the indispensable reentries and stoppers. Therefore, the count of honor-tricks alone in the hand will automatically include a proportionate amount of low-card tricks. As outlined in the Rule of Eight the ratio of honor-tricks to low-card tricks is roughly 3:5. From this basic idea any player can logically work up a table of notrump bids, raises and take outs.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Snobbish or Wise?

VIVIAN has a problem. Vivian "loves" a man who is a law unto himself. He does not care what Vivian thinks or what anyone else thinks, if he is moved to do a thing he does it and his attitude is "What are you going to do about it?" He calls Vivian a snob when she prefers not to meet his friends who are always just a little worse than himself, a little bit more arrogant, a little bit more determined to do as they please, despite good manners, the demands of decency and the rights of others. "Am I really snobbish?" asks Vivian.

Far from being snobbish, Vivian is merely level-headed. The woman who ever steps down to a man, pays the price every day of her life. These illbred, ill-mannered, and ill-natured savages who do not "care" what decent people think of their depredations are incapable of any decent emotion where a woman is concerned. Her feelings are as non-existent as her rights. To them nothing matters but that they shall not be interfered with. Such a man is quite incapable of comprehending the reactions of the Viviane and so he calls her natural digust "snobbishness." Well, this is the sort of snobbishness that made Bob Rogers famous, and the sort that is a virtue not a vice. What woman could feel anything but contempt for a man like Vivian here describes.

"He says I am snobbish. Am I really? It did not matter to me that we were brought up in very different circles. I liked him and never gave it a thought. But when he began to feel that we were well enough acquainted that he need no longer open a door for me, and could use a tooth pick at the table when we went to dinner, and talk with his mouth full of food, I began to compare him with the people I knew and wonder. At last it got so that if the least thing annoyed him, he would slam around, get surly, and tell me if I did not like it I knew what I could do. Once calling upon me—not in the summertime—he calmly removed his coat! As no man I ever knew sat about in shirt-sleeves, not even my father or brother, I requested that he put his coat on. I was not disagreeable, but I certainly was firm. He did not like it and all evening was disagreeable. He considered my attitude snobbish. But I was offended at his daring to get into shirt sleeves while calling upon me. If I am wrong, tell me so. But he has told me time and again that he does not care what I think and that he will act as he pleases and I can like it or not, it is all the same to him. Am I snobbish to believe as I was taught, that a gentleman can be poor or rich but that whether poor or rich he respects woman, considers her feelings, is not offensive in his personal habits and never deliberately violates the rules that all self-respecting people accept as necessary to an orderly existence? Is that being a snob?

VIVIAN.

THE NEW Jelleff's

Richly Colored Silhouette Dress Latest Paris Design

Paris, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—A brand-new silhouette which aims a death blow at the old-fashioned mode, and which is designed in rich colors and brocades of ancient Persia, was exhibited by one of the greatest Parisian couturiers this week-end as the winter style for 1932.

The new silhouette, which was exhibited with tiny, tip-tilted, feathered hats, had a narrow shoulder line, hips supple without being wide and skirts fairly full with the hem in contrast with the wide shoulders, tight hips and skirt and old-fashioned fancies hitherto displayed.

"Puffs and crinoline are out for modern women," said a statement of the couturier issued with the collection, "because the doors of our little two-seaters bar the way."

The collection presents a further style upset in the complete elimination of black and substitution of dark brown. Other colors were Persian red, a shade resembling old rose, and Persian green neutralized by grass green.

Many rich Persian brocades of gold, dull blue and old rose were used in suit blouses, evening gowns and wraps and daytime dress trimmings. Dark brown velvet ensembles were an outstanding note and these were designed with three-quarter length flared coats, or seven-eighths coats, almost straight line in cut and worn with Persian green, Persian red, Persian blue or gold brocade tunic blouse.

The coats following semifitted or almost straight line silhouettes used less fur than heretofore for reasons of economy. The favorite cuffs were marten sable and blue fox.

The hats followed the small silhouette and were worn with an exaggerated tilt over one eye. They were often turned down in front and turned up sharply in back with a flower, fur or feather trim in the rear.

Brown Will Study Air Mail Service

Stops at Havana, Panama Planned En Route to California.

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General Brown plans to leave New York August 6 on the steamship President Hoover to attend California conventions early in September of postoffice employes.

Mr. Brown said yesterday he would confer with American and native officials at Havana and Panama City, stopping one day at each point. He is to attend the postoffice supervisors' convention from September 1 to 3 in San Francisco and the carriers' meeting in Oakland September 7 to 10. He said he would return from Oakland to Washington by plane.

Mr. Brown said he was particularly interested in the United States air mail service to South America and desired to get his own picture of operations in Cuba and Panama. No particular changes appeared involved in his visits, however, which, he pointed out, would be made during regular stops of the boat. He has been in both Panama and Cuba previously, but not since becoming chief of the postal service.

Doom of Churches In America Hinted

Youths Must Take Part in Singing, Declares Director in Virginia.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 2.—American churches are doomed unless they give young people opportunity for leadership in the worship services, Dr. John Finley Williamson, head of the Westminster Choir School, Ithaca, declared tonight at the Massanetta Springs Bible Conference.

Sacred music, he declared, is the best means to give people a chance to express themselves and take the leadership in church service. He added that the church will not survive by interesting the young people only in social activities of the church.

Dr. Williamson will direct the music festival at Massanetta Thursday and Friday when choirs and choruses from all parts of Virginia and adjacent States will compete. The grand climax will be the singing of the massed choir of 1,000 voices. These choirs have been in training for the past month and promise to provide the greatest musical event in the history of Shenandoah Valley.

Gain in Trade Seen Despite Handicaps

Revival Will Not Need to Await Removal of All Obstacles, Is View.

New York, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Despite the German crisis, which has had a restraining effect upon hopes that autumn business expansion might be more rapid or greater than usual, the monthly review of the National City Bank of New York finds there is "no reason to fear that business revival will be compelled to wait for complete removal of all the obstacles opposed to it."

"Necessities must be supplied," the review, released today, says, "and trade goes on despite handicaps."

"Nevertheless, the month's foreign news offers disappointing evidence of the seriousness of the difficulties which remain to be dealt with, after nearly two years of depression, and of the problems to be solved in restoring world trade and international capital movements to normal."

"Human Pin-Cushion" Studied by Experts

Lorain, Ohio, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—Due to an abnormality of his nervous system, Walter Easler, known here as a "human pin cushion," can pierce his face and arms with needles without feeling any pain. Physicians say his is a remarkable case of sensory anasthesia, with the explanation that the nerves which carry the sensations of pain, as well as of heat and cold to the brain, do not function in his body.

But specialists point out he faces a real peril in that he may develop acute indigestion, or appendicitis, or some other form of illness in which pain is the chief warning and his condition might become critical without his having any warning.

Belled Buzzards To Float Over Ohio

Lancaster, Ohio, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—A buzzard which soared and dipped to the tinkle of a small bell around its neck became a legend in Fairfield County. It disappeared and news came that an Indiana farmer had killed the "belled" bird.

Now three Lancaster boys propose to restore the "belled" buzzard to the county's list of unusual phenomena. The boys trapped two mated buzzards, placed bells around their necks and released them. They then discovered a buzzard nest with four young buzzards which they are guarding and will "bell" before the birds are old enough to fly away.

Little Red Hen Runs Nest Time by Clock

Kingston, N. C., Aug. 2 (U.P.).—A little red hen quits her nest regularly every day at 6:15 a. m., 12 o'clock noon and 5:45 p. m. for food and water, according to W. R. Brinkley, her owner.

WHOLESALE INQUIRY AIDS TRADE'S TREND

Slumps in Wheat and Cotton Offset by Recovery in Merchandise Buying.

New York, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Slumps in the wheat and cotton markets and gloomy quarterly reports from leading steel makers, weighed rather heavily on business sentiment during the past week.

These developments were counterbalanced, however, by somewhat more active inquiry in wholesale market, if actual buying, in preparation for autumn trade; continued cheer in the woolen textile and shoe manufacturing lines, where activity continues at the best rate in some time; some further pick-up in furniture manufacturing and improvement in live stock, hide and petroleum prices.

Although the low prices for steel have resulted in a distinctly unsatisfactory situation for manufacturers, the United States Steel Corporation reporting the lowest earnings in 16 years, corporate earnings in the aggregate, have in the second quarter of the year shown considerable improvement over the first quarter, on the basis of a large number of reports now available. It is also notable that steel output has held somewhat above the low levels reached in 1921.

Earnings of Corporations.

The National City Bank has made a tabulation of earnings statements received from 325 industrial and merchandising corporations for the first half. Separate figures for the quarterly periods are available for about three-fourths of these concerns, the second quarter shows in the aggregate a gain of 31 per cent over the first quarter. The second quarter is usually better than the first, but this gain is considerably larger than usual. The aggregate for the 325 companies for the first half of the year was approximately $353,000,000, a drop of 45 per cent from the like period of 1930, and of 62 per cent from the record levels of 1929.

It is notable that a marked reduction in overhead and operating expenses has been made, and several corporations that operated in the red during the first quarter were back in black ink again in the second. Several individual companies have actually reported better earnings for the second quarter of 1931 than they did for the second quarter of 1930.

August has arrived with industrial activity generally estimated at around the low levels of last December. The situation has been accentuated by vacation shutdowns at several automobile plants. The Ford Motor Co. has closed its manufacturing plants for the month, although assembly plants are still running on part time.

Upturn Signs Due.

This is the month when stirrings preparatory to the usual upswing in business activity in the autumn should be noted. Little change is expected until the latter part of the month, and many business executives appear to be guarding against a repetition of the disappointments of last autumn by not expecting too much.

The business statistics of the past week have again reflected little save midsummer quiet. Electric Power production as reported for the latest week, was well maintained, showing a reduction of only 1.9 per cent from the like week of last year. Freight car loadings sagged about 6,000 cars from the preceding week. Steel production was placed at 32 per cent of capacity, an actual gain over the 30 per cent of a week previously.

With the shutdowns in the motor trade and little buying from the railroads, the steel trade felt that this upturn was too early to be interpreted as marking a definite trend.

WEEK'S PRICES FIRM IN GILT-EDGE BONDS

Net Result for Other Issues Is Narrow Decline; News Aids Germans.

New York, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—The bond market executed a series of back and forth movements, last week, the net result of which was a narrow irregular decline. As a group foreign obligations provided some of the largest losses. Railroad issues proved more vulnerable than other domestic loans.

Really gilt edge obligations of all groups were consistently steady or firm. Returning confidence in foreign conditions was reflected in the gradual gains in several of the more pivotal German issues. The week-end news of the agreement for the purchase and sale of sterling bills between the central banks of the United States, Great Britian and France preceded a recovery in the 5½ per cent bonds of 1937 of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

This contract, it is hoped, will help to stimulate greater confidence in British affairs. Another important influence was the publication of July earnings of railroads which continued to compare unfavorably with the corresponding results for 1930 although the comparisons in some instances were not so unfavorable as for June.

The New York State Banking Department on Friday removed several rail issues from the list of investments considered legal for savings banks. Of course, this action could affect directly the holdings of only New York State institutions, but it is indicative of the predicament of the railroads generally.

The Chase National Bank, as fiscal agents for Argentina, has announced that $119,156 is available for the purchase below par of bonds for the sinking fund of the 5½ per cent issue due August 1, 1962, of that country.

Kelvinator Corporation has called all its outstanding 6 per cent convertible gold notes at 105, as of September 30, which will leave the company without bonded indebtedness except its building bonds.

Offerings of bonds during the week aggregated $84,339,350, compared with $28,947,000 for the previous week and $118,958,900 in the corresponding week of 1930. In considering the increased total for the week just passed it should be remembered that the flotations were principally public utility and municipal issues for which there has been a good market for some time because of the high standing of most such issues.

The desire of many banks to maintain a thoroughly liquid position has concentrated the demand upon issues of ready marketability. These two groups include many such bonds.

National Electric Net Is Up.

New York, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—National Electric Power Co., eastern unit of the Middle West Utilities System, reported for the June quarter net for retirement of dividends of National Electric Power $1,580,938, compared with $1,563,432 for the corresponding period last year.

Leading the Way Back

Q. "How do you find Business?"
A. "By Going after it."

Such is the enterprising answer to a question that is notably current. Employees and dealers in the areas served by the Associated Gas and Electric System answered it by setting a new record during their recent six weeks' refrigerator sales campaign.

19,489 Refrigerators Sold in Six Weeks

Customers in the area served by the Associated System purchased 19,489 automatic refrigerators during this period. This is more than they purchased during a similar campaign last year when the Associated System sold the largest number of refrigerators ever sold by a utility group in a single campaign.

About half or 9,592 of these sales in the recent campaign, were made by dealers who were assisted by a plan of cooperation established by the Associated New Business Department.

Stability from Domestic Use

Growing domestic use of electricity from sale of appliances increases the natural stability of the industry. Stability from this source is becoming even more pronounced. During 1930, use of electricity in homes accounted for 33⅓% of the revenues of the industry compared to 28% in 1921.

This trend of the electric industry is of interest to those seeking sound investments with growth possibilities. The achievement of dealers in cooperation with employees of the Associated System in the face of conditions generally unfavorable to business expansion shows that the utilities are an important influence in leading the way back to business recovery.

SPORTS MONDAY AUGUST 3, 1931 The Washington Post. MONDAY AUGUST 3, 1931 SPORTS

CROWDER STOPS MACKS AS NATS RALLY TO WIN, 10-6

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THIS column does not infer that the Athletics bent an ear to the warning of William Harridge, American League president, that the runaway they were making of the pennant race presaged a slump in the box office throughout the remainder of the circuit, but the brace of defeats that the Mackmen have absorbed at the hands of the Nats in the last two days has served to tighten the race a bit.

But this column does not share the enthusiasm that might have been revived as the result of the Nats' pair of victories. As far as I am able to discern, the Mackmen are still ten games in the lead with the season well beyond the halfway mark, and have given no evidence that they are about to crack wide open, which would be the only salvation of the Washington Club.

The Nats' pair of victories in the opening games of the current series are safely in their bat bag and the fact that neither Grove nor Earnshaw saw duty for the Athletics is no reflection on the Nats' triumphs. But the double-header at Philadelphia today doubtless will see them in action and there is none so rash as to predict a double victory for the Nats, which would be the only method of an appreciable gain. A double defeat would be a mortal blow to the Nats' hopes.

Nats' Task Is Great

Resorting to the cold statistics, this column discovers that the work of the Nats in overhauling the Athletics is indeed imposing. The Mackmen have 52 games to play and the Nats 54. Should the Athletics do no worse than win half of their remaining games, the Nats would be forced to win 37 of 17 to gain a tie, a much higher pace than they have maintained since the start of tthe season.

The greater probability is not that the Athletics will slump, but that the Nats will bolster their percentage during the last weeks of the season. But the pace the Washington Club must hit is almost prohibitive in the absence of anything short of an utter collapse of the champions.

This column has contended for several seasons that the one great difference between the Nats and the Athletics is that the Nats must play good ball at all times to win while the Athletics can play bad baseball and still win ball games.

Nats Lack Weapons

This seeming paradox is accountable to the fact that the Mackmen possess two weapons which the Nats do not boast. First of these is the long-distance batting attack of Simmons, Cochrane and Foxx that can break up a ball game on an inning's notice. Secondly, is the presence of Lefty Grove, who can be thrown into any relief spot, in turn or out, to save or win ball games that happen to be close.

The Nats have no heavy artillery to match the Athletics' slugging. Cronin hits the far and wide on occasion and so does Sam West. Beyond these two, the Nats' long-distance hitting is negligible. Manush, for a big man, is a very moderate hitter. Dave Harris, when he is in the lineup, hits them far, but he is a great risk against right-handed pitching.

BALTIMOREAN SIGNED.

The Orioles took on Catcher Ben Artigiani, a Baltimore youth, when Eddie Kenna hurt a knee in blocking a Jersey City runner, July 23. Astigiani had several previous trials in the International League and also played in the old Blue Ridge League.

Rosenbloom, Slattery in 7th Bout

Title Fray Wednesday Tops Fistic Program for Week.

Maxie Trains in Night Club But Rules 6-5 Betting Choice.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, whose pursuit of the light-heavyweight championship began so long ago that only the oldest inhabitant can remember when it was, will try again this week. His bid for the title consistently beaten back by Tommy Loughran in the old days, Slattery will see what he can do with Maxie Rosenbloom, the Harlem clown, in a fifteen-round struggle at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night.

Rosenbloom and Slattrey have clashed six times and Jimmy has won four decisions to two for Slapsie Maxie. But all of Slattery's victories came before Rosenbloom had won the 175-pound title. In their last meeting, with the title at stake, Maxie won a close decision at Buffalo.

Rosenbloom Trains in Night Clubs.

Rosembloom has done his training for the coming title test in New York's night clubs. Gifted with remarkable stamina, the champion never has seen the need for intensive training in a gymnasium. He fights often enough to keep himself in shape. Slattery, something of a playboy himself at one time, has trained earnestly for this bout. Maxie rules a 6 to 5 favorite in the betting.

Dave Shade, veteran Californian, who once knocked out Slattery, appears in the eight-round semifinal with Tiger Thomas, of Leiperville, Pa.

Primo Carnera, Italian giant, and Jack (Kid) Berg, English lightweight, furnish the other high spots of the metropolitan district card for the week. Carnera battles Roberto Roberti, another big Italian, in a ten-rounder at Newark, N. J., tomorrow and Armando Decarlos, at Wilmington, Del., on Thursday. Berg tackles Jimmy McNamara, of New York, at the Queensboro Stadium Tuesday night.

Labarba, Zorilla Meet Thursday.

The far western program includes a ten-round bout at Sacramento Thursday between Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles featherweight, and Santiago Zorilla, and a heavyweight scrap at Oakland tomorrow night between Joe Santa, big Portuguese, and Leon Chevalier, San Francisco Negro. Chevalier will be remembered as the boy who gave Carnera a battle of it at Oakland last year. The fight ended strangely when Chevalier's seconds tossed in a towel for no apparent reason.

Bouts on the national schedule include:

MONDAY—At Newark, N. J., Primo Carnera, Italy, vs. Roberto Roberti, Italy, heavyweights, 10; at New York, Madison Square Garden, Giacomo Bergomas, Italy, vs. Con O'Kelly, Boston, heavyweights, 10; at New York, Starlight Park, Mike Payan, Arizona, vs. Frankie Petrolle, Fargo, N. Dak., welterweights, 8; at Oakland, Calif., Jose Santa, Portugal, vs. Leon Chevalier, San Francisco Negro, heavyweights, 10; at Columbus, Ohio, Johnny Freeman, Buffalo, vs. Sammy Cohen, Cleveland, heavyweights, 10; at Chicago, Frankie Battaglia, Canada, vs. Pete Lacrosse, and Clyde Chastain, Tex., vs. Jerry Crano, Chicago, all middleweights, each 10.

RED SOX AND YANKEES DIVIDE

Moore Annexes 3-Hit Duel, 1-0; Ruffing Wins First, 4-1.

BOSTON, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—A crowd of 40,000, the largest to witness a ball game in Boston since the 1916 world's series, today saw the Red Sox and Yankees divide a double-header. The visitors took the opener, 4 to 1, while Wiley Moore shut out his old teammates, 1 to 0, in the second.

The first game started out as a pitching duel between Charlie Ruffing and Jack Russell, but the latter weakened in the eighth, giving four hits and two walks.

In the nightcap, Moore and George Pipgras held the opposing batsmen to three hits, the lone score coming in the eighth on singles by Sweeney and Berry and a muff at the plate by Jorgens. It was the Red Sox's first shut out this season.

German Women Set And Tie Track Marks

Magdeburg, Germany, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Fraulein Ellen Braumuller bettered her own women's world javelin throw record in a two day track and field meet which ended here today.

Winning the pentathlon with the German record-breaking total of 395 points, Fraulein Braumuller tossed the javelin 42.28 meters (138 feet, 8 77-128 inches). Her own listed record is 40.27 meters (132 feet, 1 59-128 inches).

Frauline Dollinger, of Nuremberg, tied the world's record of Mrs. Lida Radke for the 800 meters when she was timed in 2:16 8-10 for the distance.

Collins Breaks Ankle; Derringer in 13th Triumph.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Paul Derringer and Charley Root were both out to win their thirteenth victory of the season this afternoon, but Derringer was the better of the two, St. Louis defeating the Cubs, 6 to 2, and increasing its lead to 8½ games over the Chicagoans. A field crowd of 42,000 watched the game.

Root was hit hard by the champions in the second and third innings, though poor support got him in trouble on the first occasion. Jimmy Wilson's fly fell for a triple and a pop fly by Gelbert went for a single to count the first run. Solid hitting by Hafey, Wilson, Gelbert, Adams and Watkins scored three in the third to clinch the game. A double by Grimm followed by Blair's single counted the first Cub run in the fifth and in the eighth Cuyler hit a home run to end the scoring.

In the first inning Jim Collins tripped over first base and an X-ray at the hospital revealed a chipped bone in his left ankle. He will be out for the season, Bottomley returning to the line-up.

Pegler Suggests That Mack Keep His Great Team and Give Other Clubs Handicap

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—There is talk again to the effect that Connie Mack, having assembled a ball club altogether too good for his seven competitors in the American League, will disband the team at the end of the present term, as he scattered that other great team of his before the war, and start all over. Perfection has become monotonous to the Philadelphia customers, who can not arouse themselves over the routine confirmation of foreordained results, and the management, in consequence, appears to be paying a price in loss of revenue for having built not wisely but too well.

As the team has improved, the pay roll has grown, but the receipts have not grown in proportion. The same management one before, in similar circumstances, preferred profits or, at any rate, smaller losses to pure artistic satisfaction.

The star players, too, might be able to improve their fortunes if the team were dispersed, because, scattered among a number of other clubs, they might command higher wages than Mr. Mack could pay the lot of them out of one treasury.

Sport is the only pursuit in which the best, becoming too good for their inferiors, handicap themselves a certain number of strokes, goals, pounds or seconds to make the others seem better and, by this illusion of competition, stimulate interest and, in some cases, receipts. The rule of the survival of the fittest is honored in the breach when a golfer who can not tour a course in fewer than a hundred strokes is awarded a discount of 30 per cent and deemed to have played his round in 70 and to have beaten a man with a gross score of, say, 75.

In business it would be as fair to demote the president of a firm to the rank of office boy or promote the boy to the rank of president on the ground that the boy wasn't as good as the president. Nor is the grocer

Series Scene Shifts to Philly; Fisher, Hadley Named.

Grove and Earnshaw Due for Athletics; Both Are Rested.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Nationals and Mackmen left immediately after yesterday's game for Philadelphia, where a double-header will be staged between the two this afternoon in Greater Shibe Park. Connie Mack, who usually crosses the scribes trying to guess in advance his mound starters, is hardly likely to do so today, for he has not used Lefty Bob Grove or George Earnshaw lately and it is almost a certainty that they will get the call.

Manager Walter Johnson will use Irving (Bump) Hadley in the opener and Carl Fischer, young southpaw, in the nightcap. All of the Nats except Pitchers Jones, Pradet and Carey took the trip.

Should the Nats happen to win twice today—and all things are possible—they will cut the Philadelphia lead to 8 games and will have a chance to do more gaining later in the week, for they will be playing the Red Sox while the Mackmen will be battling the slugging Yankees in New York.

Nats Cut Strings On Boss.

Washington has cut the option strings on first-baseman Harley Boss, of the Chattanooga Club. This action was taken so that the Lookouts may be in a position to sell the player to the highest bidder in either of the major leagues. Boss has developed into a star of the first water. He is hitting better than .300 and fielding sensationally and it is understood no less than five clubs, two in the National, are seeking his services.

With the Nationals holding their option on Boss, he could not be sold to a club in the National League without waivers being granted in the American. The Nats are financially interested in the Chattanooga Club; hence their cancellation of their option.

Nine Mackmen went to the swinging block in the first round. Crowder fanning the side after relieving Jones, with McNair's single coming between the first two strike-outs.

After walking Myer, opening the game for the Nats, McDonald also passed Rice, making a stroller of him on four successive balls.

Johnson shifted the Washington line-up, moving up Bluege to sixth place and dropping Kuhel to seventh.

West raced well over toward left for Cochrane's looper ending the second.

Simmons Plays To Gallery.

Simmons, one of Ty Cobb's best imitators, went over to the stands near left and took Crowder's pop with one hand, opening the home second. It was a play to the gallery, as he made a normally easy catch look hard.

With Altrock and Schacht clowning at Youngstown yesterday, Capt. Joe Judge took the latter's place in the coaching box back of third.

Rice went back near the scoreboard for Foxx's high looper in the third.

When Williams took Spencer's pop in the third, it gave every Mackman except the pitchers one of the eight putouts turned in at that time. Another unusual feature of the game was that none of the Nats was credited with an assist until Bluege came in fast to make a nice play on McNair's topped grasser, ending the Mackian fifth.

Miller made a nice try for West's liner in the fifth, but could not hold on to the ball, kicking it as he fell and letting it go as a second double for the Nat center fielder.

Rice came in fast to make a pretty one-hand catch of Williams' near Texas leaguer opening the sixth round.

Crowder Tricks Cramer.

Crowder's first three offerings to Cramer, opening the seventh were balls. Then the "General" shot three successive strikes over the plate for his seventh strikeout of the game.

Cronin's only fielding chance of the game did not come until he tossed out Foxx ending the seventh. Neither Myer nor Manush had any work afield and the Washington infield had but two assists during the whole game.

West opened the seventh with his third double of the game, but was out when he tried to stretch it into a three-bagger. The Nats would have scored another run had he played safe, for Kuhel later came through with a single to right.

Kuhel reached over in a field box for Miller's foul in the eighth, catching the ball at arm's length away. It was quite a play.

Foxx made a brilliant back-handed stop of Crowder's roller opening the home eighth, robbing the Nat pitcher of what appeared to be a sure hit.

Tigers Stop White Sox, 8-4; Herring in Form

Detroit, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers fell on the Chicago White Sox, their rivals for tail-end honors in the American League standings, for an 8 to 4 victory today and evened the series at one game each.

Thomas, starting White Sox pitching, gave way to Caraway at the end of the fourth, having yielded eight hits and six runs. Art Herring allowed nine scattered hits.

Jones Yields 4 Runs in First Without Getting an Out.

Nats Even Score in Their Half; Clinch Game in Second.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

BEATING the world's champion Athletics two in a row no doubt is good enough news to followers of the Nationals, but it was the manner in which it was done that made the big hit with the 16,000 who parked themselves in Griffith Stadium yesterday, for Johnson's henchmen overcame a first-inning four-run lead to turn the trick and then coasted on to a 10-to-6 victory. The triumph let the Nats cut down the aliens' leading margin to ten games and enabled them to advance to four and a half in front of the third-place Yankees, who split a double-header with the Red Sox.

There was hardly a fan in the stands but who gave up the game after the Mackmen's good start. "Sad Sam" Jones started on the hill for the Nats and his experience made him much sadder. On his first three offerings, the A's molded one run, then he walked two, filling the bases, and dejectedly dragged himself out of the box, still with none out, after Jimmy Foxx had scored two more with a single.

Crowder Fans Three In First.

This brought "General" Al Crowder into action and, although he granted one more hit while retiring the side on strikeouts, he performed brilliantly thereafter. He was later scored on twice, once when Al Simmons poled out his sixteenth homer of the season, and on another occasion on two successive hits and a long fly, but was generally effective.

Where the Nationals had it on the Mackmen was in relief pitching, for Hank McDonald, starter for the A's, failed to last more than one-third of an inning. He was yanked with two runs over and, instead of using one of his "big three," Mack figured that Waite Hoyt could stop the Nats—and he was very, very wrong. Two were on when the former Yankee and Tiger toed the slab and Joe Kuhel singled them home to knot the count before he could turn in the third out.

In the second, Hoyt was nicked for four more runs and the Nationals breezed along in front over the balance of the route. With the horse already stolen, Mack locked the stable door by putting Ed Rommel on the hill and the Nats scored two runs off of his slants to equal the two molded by the Mackmen after their first frame.

Eight Strikeout Victims For "General."

Crowder struck out eight, three in the first inning, walked none and, except in the aliens' scoring frames, permitted only Rommel and Bishop, who hit doubles, to get past first base, and both of these died where their own efforts carried them. There is no question but what the "General" was "right" yesterday.

He could not win the game alone, though, and along with two helpful errors by the Macks, came some most timely hitting by some of his mates. The A's could not get Sammy West out, for he had a perfect day at bat, getting four hits in as many times up with three of these being doubles. One drove home, two runs, while his single accounted for another. Joe Kuhel singled home two and later inserted another safe blow, while Heinie Manush came through with a double and one-shot.

Joe Cronin was credited with but one safety, but it was a screaming triple to clear the bases with two on. Al Simmons led the visitors with the stick, joining West in the 1,000 class. He was up four times, walked once, and then cracked out two one-basers in addition to his round trip drive into the stands in left-center.

The way the game started, it looked as though the Nats would never get the Mackmen out. Bishop tripled on Jones' first offering and Cramer singled him home on the second ball pitched to him. Jones had a wild spell here and packed the aisles by walking both Cochrane and Simmons. When Foxx singled two home, Crowder hustled to the hill. He fanned Miller, granted McNair a one-bagger, which scored the fourth run of the round, and then struck out Williams and McDonald.

The latter had his troubles, too, though. He walked Myer and Rice, the first two to face him, and then disposed of Manush. McNair fumbled Cronin's roller and the runways were crowded. West doubled two home, bringing Hoyt to the mound, and he seemed to be greatly pleased when he fanned Bluege. Kuhel, however, wiped the smile off his face by singling Cronin and West home, and the string was tied.

Nats Take Four-Run Lead In Second.

Hardly had the cheers died down from this stand when the Nats got busy again in the second, scoring four more runs. Myer tripled after Crowder had flied out and scored when Bishop fumbled Rice's roller. Then came a one-shot by Manush, Cronin's base-clearing triple, and West's liner

SUN BEAU TOPS KSAR, FRENCH HORSE, IN MONEY-WINNINGS

Check Shows Kilmer Ace In Front

Value of Cups and Plate Added to Ksar's List.

Sun Beau May Earn $25,000 at Hawthorne Saturday.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—Old Sun Beau, which came pounding down the stretch victorious in the Arlington Handicap yacht to increase his earnings to $330,044, is the world's greatest money-winning thoroughbred, notwithstanding the claims set up for the French horse Ksar, credited with having won $355,340.

Search of musty racing records today revealed that Ksar's winnings included all the pieces of plate and cups he won, instead of restricting his earnings to dollars and cents.

Disregarding the freak record set up by Ksar, the list of high-money winners of the world follows:

America—Sun Beau, $330,044.
England—Isinglass, $291,275.
Australia—Amaonis, $241,448.
France—Sardantal, $211,405.

Racing authorities said that Ksar actually won, in dollars and cents, about $200,000, but the value of the cups and plate awarded to the French horse brought his total earnings up to the amount claimed for him.

Sun Beau's Trophies Valuable.

They pointed out that if Willis Sharpe Kilmer, of Binghamton, N. Y., owner of gallant old Sun Beau, desired to include the value of the cups and trophies the famous son of Sun Briar—Beautiful Lady had won, his earnings might be stretched to $375,000. Sun Beau has won the Hawthorne Gold Cup, a valuable trophy, twice, and may do it again, for he is entered in the event to be decided at Hawthorne in the fall.

Even if Sun Beau's record is disputed, it won't be long now before the famous 6-year-old rolls up another $25,000 or $30,000 to his amazing total. He is entered in the Hawthorne Handicap next Saturday and may be forced to shoulder an impost of 132 pounds compared to the 128 he lugged to dramatic victory in the Arlington Handicap to win $27,300 yesterday. The Hawthorne Handicap is over a mile and an eighth route, instead of a mile and a quarter, the distance of the Arlington Handicap and the Arlington Gold Cup, both of which Sun Beau won.

Sun Beau carried 126 pounds in galloping to victory in the Arlington Gold Cup. His weight for the Hawthorne Handicap will be announced tomorrow. John Whyte, trainer of Sun Beau, fears the horse may be weighted down with such a load that his chances of winning may be remote.

Sun Beau amassed his great racing fortune in five years of campaigning. He started in 68 races and was out of the money only 18 times. He won 30 races and finished second or third in 20 others.

The racing scene shifts to Hawthorne, oldest track in the West, for eighteen days of racing. Twenty-three crack sprinters are entered for the inaugural handicap, a $5,000 stake race, at 6 furlongs. Gallant Knight, a doubtful starter, was assigned top weight of 124 pounds, while Epithet and Tannery are next in line with 122 and 120.

Barry Meets Weiss Tonight In Feature Bout at Fort

"Reds" Barry (left), Washington's light-heavyweight pride, and Sam Weiss, of Philadelphia, who clash tonight in the feature bout of the Fort Washington Athletic Association's weekly program.

"REDS" BARRY, who is getting a fistic education under the guidance of Patsy Donovan, meets a rough and ready light-heavyweight tonight in the person of Sam Weiss, of Philadelphia. The bout, the feature of the Fort Washington Athletic Association's weekly program at the Maryland Army Post, is expected to sizzle with action.

Barry, who has shown an inclination to loaf in some bouts, will be afforded few opportunities for breathers tonight if he wants to carry off the big-money end of his battle with Weiss, who is considered one of the best men at his weight in the East.

Weiss made a fine impression in his appearance at the Laurel Arena when he triumphed over Pete Latzo. Among others on the Philadelphia Hebrew's decision list are Billy Jones, Rosy Rosales, Babe McGorgary, Vince Forgione, Pat McCarthy, Walter Madey, Jimmy Mahoney, Doc Conrad and Danny Devlin.

Weiss Has String Of Knockouts.

He has scored knockout victories over Herman Weiner, Johnny Walker, Babe Steller, Barney Pierce, Mickey Casey, Harry Mendes, Ralph Kid Wagner, Jack Lucas, Tony Strange, George McLaughlin, Jimmy McDonough and Danny Dunn.

Barry has had much experience during his short career. His latest victories in this section have been over Billy Schwartz, Joe Finazzo and Billy Strickler. If Barry can get over the Weiss hurdle tonight it will mark a step up the fistic ladder.

In addition to Barry, local boys help fill out the remainder of the program. The semifinal brings Sailor McKenna into action against with Clarence Sloat. The latter was dissatisfied with the decision that the Sailor received in their first meeting and has been given another chance. Sloat knocked out Whity Saylor at the Midcity Arena recently.

Irving Again Shows Stuff.

Henry Irving, popular at the fort, takes on Roy Pollock in a match billed at the main preliminary. However, interest is likely to be centered in the match between Sailor Oden and Soldier Clark. Both are hard hitters and have victories to their credit at the fort.

Doug Swetman and Harry Reed are down for four rounds, as are Roddy Davis and Eddie Stack.

Match Offers Chance for Capital Boy to Gain Prestige.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Hawthorne Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAWTHORNE RACE TRACK, Chicago, Aug. 2.—With the closing of Arlington Park, the scene shifts to Hawthorne, which starts its eighteen-day meeting tomorrow with a highly interesting program. The Inaugural Handicap, feature attraction of the well-arranged card, received a list of 23 smart sprinters to contest the $5,000 added value of the stake over the 6-furlong distance.

KNIGHT COMMANDER, Gallant—Whiskaway gelding, nicely weighted with 112 pounds, appears well suited by the conditions of the headliner. He has displayed plenty of early foot in recent efforts and his last triumph at 1 mile in 1:35 4-5 stamps him as the logical choice. EPITHET, the Warm Stable's speed marvel, which lowered the 6-furlong record at Arlington Park, despite his impost of 122 pounds, should offer keen competition. NO MORE, in receipt of 5 pounds from EPITHET, is at the peak of his form at present and has a chance of sharing in the purse. GALLANT KNIGHT and TANNERY, two steady campaigners, are outside possibilities.

FIRST RACE—WHIZZ JAMES was beaten a length in his last start in fast time, and that effort repeated here would return the Northway Stable youngster the winner. DIS DAT has been close up in previous races and appears next best, with RUFFIAN favored for the show.

SECOND RACE—NELLIE CUSTIS, consistent Sir Barton mare from the Audley Farm, holds a slight edge over her rivals. TADDYWAWA and TOMBEREAU are closely rated, with the former selected for the place.

THIRD RACE—STICK AROUND is dropping down and may lead his opponents to the wire. The Whitneybred gelding will favor the route and should have little trouble in this cheap field. BATTLING ON weakened last outing and was beaten a neck. The Oceanic colt is picking up two pounds and may prove dangerous. WRIGLEY FIELD has worked well and appears capable of taking down the show award.

FIFTH RACE—Mrs. R. S. Pollard's ULUNIU was a trifle short in his last effort to finish a neck behind Footmark in a fast run mile. He is fancied to win here. THE NUT, from the Warm Stable, is unreliable but if he shows his best effort may battle it out with the top one. IRONSIDES is a bad post actor but with a break at the barrier, the Man o' War six-year-old must be conceded an outside chance.

SIXTH RACE—MONTANARO closed full of run in his last at seven furlongs and at the added route here figures to score. DR. PARRISH has been rounding to form and is the logical contender, with JIM ORMONT, a consistent plater, selected for the minor award.

SEVENTH RACE—SETH'S BALLOT has been freshened up since his Washington Park victory and is given the call. DUELIST, a steady router, figures to improve off his last race when he finished third to Dodgston and Vermiculite. SEARINGTON has turned in some fair efforts over a distance of ground and against this field should last to get into the money.

FRONT ROYAL STARS BEAT CELTICS

McIntire Fans 15 But Loses Mound Duel by 2-1 Count.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 2.—Front Royal All Stars defeated the St. Mary's Celtics, 2 to 1, here this afternoon at Baggett's Park before nearly 500 fans. "Lefty" McIntire pitched brilliantly for the Celtics, striking out fifteen men and allowing only six hits, but the Green and Gold could do little with the offerings of Ray Borden in the pinches and the latter earned the verdict.

The All Stars collected three of their safeties in the second inning and scored the two runs that trimmed the Celts. McCracken led off with a triple and singles by B. Downing and Borden put over two runs.

Third Loss Charged To Celtics.

A pass to Art Ludlow, who stole second, and a single by Goodwin gave the Celtics their lone marker in the fourth.

The loss was the third suffered by the Celtics this year and, while hampering the locals' chance to retain the State semipro championship, does not throw them out of the race entirely.

It was learned this afternoon that the Fredericksburg Elks, over whom the Celtics hold a triumph, defeated the Stars in Fredericksburg several weeks ago, and the race is now a three-cornered deadlock.

TRIBE TWICE WINS OVER BROWNS

Indians Hit Hard to Win by Margin of 9-4 and 11-9.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians strengthened their hold on fourth place in the American League race by conquering the St. Louis Browns in both ends of a double-header here today, 9 to 4 and 11 to 9.

Wesley Ferrell was credited with his fifteenth pitching triumph of the season in the opener, letting the Browns down with seven hits. Ferrell also aided his cause with a home run. Red Kress hit a homer for the Browns in the first game.

Heavy hitting by both teams featured the nightcap. Both starting pitchers, Willis Hudlin for the Indians, and Walter Stewart for the Browns, were hammered out early, Goose Goslin hit for the circuit.

J. C. C. Rely Defeats Griff-Blue Coals, 9-8

Scoring six runs in the seventh inning, the Jewish Community Center nine eked out a 9-8 decision over "Wee" Willie Glascoe's Griffith-Blue Coal team on the Center's diamond yesterday. Ben Mensh's double followed by Shapiro's single put the game on ice for Jim McNamara's charges. Toby Taylor, making his first appearance in a Griffith uniform, acquitted himself well.

5,000 SEE SAKS NINE EVEN CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE PLAY-OFF

Pitching of Payne Features As Dixie Pigs Succumb, 5-4

Clothiers Gain Four-Run Lead in First Inning Attack.

Jones Holds Foes After Damage; Colliere Is Fanned.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

PLAYING errorless ball behind the masterful pitching of "Wild Bill" Payne, the Saks Clothiers sent the Dixie Pigs down to their first defeat of the season on the South Ellipse yesterday, 5 to 4, thereby tying up the series for the District unlimited championship of the Capital City League, with each team having one victory to its credit. Approximately 5,000 fans witnessed the fray, which was by far the most exciting game of the year.

Saks jumped on Culberson, who started for the Pigs, for four runs in the opening round, a lead which their opponents were unable to overcome.

Mulhall's Homer Nets Two Runs.

Sebastian opened the inning with a double into the crowd in left field and came home when Jones rapped a single to left. Sam Hook walked and Joe Mulhall put the finishing touches on the rally with a home run that interrupted the game on the West Ellipse Diamond. "Lefty" Jones took up the pitching burden in the second inning, and the Clothiers scored only one run off him over the remainder of the route.

Payne, after walking "Eggie" Watts, the first man to face him, settled down to the serious business of keeping the Saks' lead safe. The husky twirler completely baffled the Pigs until the sixth inning, when he began to show traces of wildness and was touched for two runs. The Suburbanites followed up with two additional markers in the seventh and seemed all set to drive Payne from the mound, but the former Western High star tightened up and completed the game.

The poem of the mighty "Casey at the Bat" was reenacted for the benefit of those present yesterday by none other than chubby "Fee" Collier, who ended the game by striking out with the bases full in the ninth inning.

Collier Gives Imitation Of "Casey at Bat."

This was Payne's greatest effort of the day. With two out, he walked Dove and Roberts in succession and hit Stahl to fill the bases. And then the mighty "Fee" strode to the plate. Two questionable strikes aroused the roly-poly catcher's ire, and bat in hand he strode to where the umpire was standing and poured some mighty uncomplimentary remarks into his ear. The arbiter, however, waved him back to the plate and a moment later Collier completed what the "ump" had started by taking a lusty "cut" at the ball Mr. Payne tossed.

It was the old "Fee" Collier that played yesterday. The bristling, pugnacious Collier of the old Holy Name-Roamer series. In the sixth inning, "Fee" and Sammy Hook stirred up a little dust by passing some nasty remarks when the Dixie Pig receiver was walked. "Fee" started for first and Sammy, thinking to get in the last word, yelled a fond farewell to him, but Collier came back and for a minute it looked like blows would be exchanged. But the storm subsided after a brief flurry.

Stahl Forgets Being Hit While Protesting.

Another bit of excitement gripped the crowd in the eighth inning when a pitch by Payne apparently struck "Huck" Stahl as he swung on the ball. "Huck" fell to the ground holding his face despite the fact that the ball landed on his shoulder. The umpire, claiming he had swung at the ball, called it a strike, and "Huck" immediately jumped up to argue with him, apparently forgetting all about his injury. The crowd swarmed on the field at this and it was some time before order could be restored.

The third, and final game of the series will be played next Sunday. The site of the field will be announced during the week.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

ALTHOUGH the bicycle clock may not have the distinction of being the largest, smallest or most elaborate timepiece in the world, it certainly can be called the most unique. It is constructed solely of bicycle parts. The top is formed of twelve handlebars, and thirteen wheels make up the face. The clock strikes both the quarter and the full hours, the chimes being produced by an enlarged bicycle bell. To keep correct time, it is only necessary to keep all the parts well oiled. It is claimed that the clock varies less than a sixteenth of a second a month.

A thousand is not always a thousand, nor is a hundred always a hundred. For instance, a thousand nails is 1,200, a thousand slates, 1,200, and sometimes 1,260. Laths are sold by the bundle, which is generally called a hundred, but a bundle of 3-foot laths contains 140.

The tiny bones that form the framework over which is stretched the skin that makes the bat's wing are the bat's fingers. They are the longest in the world. There is no other creature that has fingers many times as long as its body.

WONDER NINE IN MIDGET LEAD

Tops in 2d Half Race by Beating Spenglers, 11 to 10.

THE Wonder Bread Midgets assumed the lead in the race for the second half title of the midget section of the Capital City League by squeezing out an 11-10 victory over the Spengler Post tossers on the South Ellipse yesterday.

The Breadmen were obliged to come from behind to gain the verdict, six runs in the ninth inning turning the tide in their favor. Spengler had previously scored three runs in its half of the final inning, and the team apparently thought the game was already in the bag. Some timely pinch hitting on the part of the Johnsons aided in the run making.

Wonders Play Samosets For Title.

The Wonders now must play the Samoset A. C. to gain undisputed possession of the second-half title. The two will meet next Sunday. The championship series for the midget title of the series will not be inaugurated until the Spengler aggregation returns from the State finals to be played at Charles Town, W. Va., next week.

In addition to the Mayflower and Island Blossom, fleet Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoes which will take part in a special event for this ancient type of craft, other boats have been entered in the regatta events.

Several Barnegat sloops, owned here, will be sailed in the event for crafts of th's class and the majority of local cruisers will take part in the bang-and-go-back event. The speed boat owned by Claude and Neal Trustow has been entered in the runabout class and chances of local yachtmen coming home with a trophy or two are good. The Mayflower is owned by Howard Strong and the Island Blossom, by Stanley Evans of Elkton, member of the local club. The latter is one of the oldest log sailing canoes in existence and has a score of wins to her credit. Specially selected crews will sail each of the canoes in the Miles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

USEFUL REMEDIES ARE DANGEROUS.

A CORRESPONDENT asked recently about castor bean, the plant from which castor oil is made. It appears that some children have been poisoned by eating the pods of what seemed a harmless weed. When it was explained that this bean was the source of castor oil, the drug, the inquirer was bewildered.

He could not understand how a poison and a useful drug could be extracted from the same plant. He did not realize that every useful drug is harmful when improperly used. Castor oil is an illustration. This drug contains an irritating substance as well as a more ordinary vegetable oil. The oil itself may have a slightly laxative action, but it would be no greater than that of olive oil, cocoanut oil or corn oil.

Most of the laxative action of castor oil is due to the presence of irritating substances incorporated in it by the growing plant. Properly used, in correct doses, at the right times, and for suitable purposes, castor oil is one of the most useful drugs. Taken in too large doses it is an irritating poison, having some kinship to croton oil. Used daily, it is very harmful. That capacity for irritating, which makes it useful as a single dose given for a specific purpose, makes it bring about constipation when used habitually.

The castor bean and its extract, castor oil, always contain this poison. In the case of plants the poison may be in one part of the plant and not in another; or, in a certain part at one stage of development but not in another; or, in the plant when grown on some soils but not when grown elsewhere.

The part of the story which interests us more is that a drug which is very helpful used in one way may be very harmful used in another. The drugs that are safe are entirely inert, and practically always, are entirely useless. Money spent for them is wasted. The man who takes them is occupying his time, or entertaining or "bunking" himself, while nature is curing him, or while his disease is following its natural course.

Yesterday two men were overheard discussing beef, wine and iron as a tonic. The well fellow was advising the ailing one to get a bottle of it. The would-be helpful friend told of having taken a bottle of it and having been cured of his ailment. One dose made him feel like a new man, and after the third dose he could see that he was well on the way to recovery. Of course, our well-intentioned friend had had no effect from one dose or three. He had been self-hypnotized, or cured by suggestion.

The medicines that are of real services when they are needed may be harmful if taken when they are not needed, or if taken in doses that are too large. The custom of taking drugs on slight provocation does much harm and would do more but that so many drugs are inert.

URIC ACID CAUSES.

Mrs. J. Q. writes:

1. What causes uric acid?
2. Will orange, lemon or tomato juice cause it?
3. Will sodium salicylate, 5 grains, affect the heart if taken for rheumatism?

REPLY.

1. You have reference to conditions that may be due to eating too much of the following: Yeast, sweetbreads, kidney, liver, roe, beef tea, meat extracts, very juicy meats. This statement suggests the answer.
2. No.
3. No.

DEPENDS ON THE TROUBLE.

Miss C. A. G. writes: I am very active in sports, such as golf, swimming, tennis and horseback riding. I have just recently been informed by our physician that I have kidney trouble. Would any of these sports be injurious, especially horseback riding, in this case? I am 20 years old.

REPLY.

All depends on what kind of kidney trouble you have.

PARK ROAD, 1627—

3 MORE ARE SOUGHT ON WOMAN'S CHARGE

One of Two Men Now Under Arrest Names Others in Assault Attempt.

While three men faced serious charges growing out of an alleged attempted assault on a woman and the subsequent purported reprisal measures taken by the woman's friends, police are looking for three additional men said to have been involved in the attempted assault.

Tenth Precinct police were ordered yesterday to look out for three young men said to be seen frequently in the vicinity of Columbia road and Eighteenth street northwest. They are said to have been named by one of the men under arrest as being members of the automobile party on which Mrs. Ann Noble Sparks suffered painful injuries from which she is slowly recovering at Sibley Hospital.

Arrests Follow Beating.

Men now under arrest are William P. Dermott, 23, Bowling Green Va.; Howell R. Boulden, 23, 2140 N street northwest, and William H. Gordon, alias Jordon. All three came into police hands as result of an altercation Saturday in which the former two suffered beatings allegedly at the hands of Gordon.

Boulden and Dermott are held in connection with the alleged mistreatment of Mrs. Sparks early Saturday after an automobile ride in nearby Maryland and are charged with attempted criminal assault and grand larceny.

Gordon may face charges of assault with a dangerous weapon. He is said to be a close friend of Mrs. Sparks, who, upon hearing of her accident, began a search for those responsible. Saturday he is said to have met the men on M street northwest and belabored one of them with a blackjack. Later the trouble began again in a garage near Eighteenth street and Columbia road northwest, and at this time police entered the affair, arresting all three of the men.

Baltimore Man Is Held.

Clifton R. Marshall, 40 years old, of Baltimore, is held in Ellicott City Jail pending outcome of injuries of Mary Goff, 20, also of Baltimore, whom he is alleged to have pushed from a moving automobile near Savage, Md., early Saturday. Marshall was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Howard U. Gosnell at Savage and fined $100 and $10, respectively, on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving.

Judge Gosnell ordered Marshall held after hearing testimony in the affair. Marshall is charged with assault with intent to kill and this would be changed to a more serious accusation in the event of Miss Goff's death. Her condition is considered serious by physicians at the Baltimore hospital, where she was taken after the incident.

INDEPENDENCE DAY OBSERVED BY SWISS

Societies in Capital Enjoy Anniversary Program at Farm in Maryland.

The 640th anniversary date of the Swiss independence was celebrated yesterday afternoon by the Swiss societies of Washington at the Beaver Farm at Four Corners, Md.

Speakers of the afternoon were E. Lardy, charge d'affaires of the Swiss Legation, who had just returned from a two months' vacation in Switzerland; P. Von Salis, attache of the legation, and Godfrey L. Hunter, attorney. E. Faesch, chancellor of the legation, acted as chairman of the independence day committee.

Mr. Lardy, who made his address in French, spoke on his recent journey through Switzerland and centered his talk around the excellent organization of the Swiss cultivated land.

Mr. Von Salis, who delivered his talk in the Swiss language, spoke on the similarity between the American and Swiss constitutions and governments.

Mr. Munter spoke in English and stressed the necessity of cooperation between the Swiss emigrant and the American citizen and that all, whether American born or native born, should adhere strictly to the laws of the United States. He also read some figures which he obtained from the Department of Commerce on the Swiss census in the United States. According to the figures, there are 327,797 Swiss in this country, of which there are 948 in the District of Columbia. Of the 948, 358 were born in Switzerland.

Numerous Swiss songs were sung throughout the celebration and refreshments and sandwiches were served.

Later in the afternoon games for children and grown-ups were held, with prize awards for the winners. Following this a Punch-and-Judy show was held, and a "grab bag" concluded the Independence Day program.

Fleming, according to Dixon, had been driving the automobile, and otta took the wheel just before the arrest. Fleming is also charged with driving without a permit. They were released in $500 bail.

Mount Vernon Replica Is Dry

Prohibition Is in Vogue at U. S. Exhibit in Vincennes.

Paris, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—The French Mount Vernon, replica of George Washington's mansion, erected at the Colonial Exposition, is going to obey the prohibition amendment and is the dryest spot in Paris.

C. Bascom Slemp, American high commissioner at the exposition, decided that Mount Vernon would be kept dry, even at the expense of exciting ridicule. There have been a number of garden parties there this summer, under the trees of the Vincennes forest, but the punch was unspiked fruit juices.

"This is just another bit of American soil and the prohibition amendment to our Constitution applies here just as much as it does in the States at home; our parties will certainly not be wet and our punches will be above reproach," Slemp said.

Embassy officials were not asked for a ruling, but pointed out that the embassy, which is also considered as American soil, is "wet" and that cocktails and wines are served at embassy functions.

Pennsy Motor Bureau's Huge Correspondence

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 2.—The "pulse of the motoring public" beats rapidly and quite frequently in Pennsylvania, according to the correspondence records of the bureau of motor vehicles. A correspondence file of 463 five-drawer cabinets, handling about 4,000,000 pieces of mail annually, is required and 235 persons are employed in disposing of the correspondence.

The letters received cover almost every subject and human emotion. Some contain legitimate questions, others ease the mind of the writer on some subject or other, while many register complaints.

42-FOOT WING SPAN ON CAPITAL GLIDER

Second Ship Designed Here by Club Members to Be Tested This Summer.

Members of the Washington Glider Club recently completed their new 42-foot-wing-span soaring glider.

The glider has been fully designed and built by the active members of the club, under the supervision of Jack Gray and Gaylord Newton, aeronautical engineers of the Department of Commerce; Laurence Marhoeffer, aeronautical engineer of the Tower Building; Louis J. Herr, catapult division, navy yard; H. B. Hendrickson, instrument division, Bureau of Standards; L. H. Crook, aerodynamical engineer of Washington; Paul E. Gerber, curator of aeronautics, Smithsonian Institution, and Ernst W. Spink.

This is the second glider designed, built and successfully flown by the members of the Glider Club. It is equipped with baragraph, recording air speed meter, standard air speed meter, bank and turn indicator, safety belt and automatic cable release. Test flights have revealed that the gliding angle of this particular glider is 15 to 1.

The glider, which is 18½ feet long and weighs 260 pounds, is of the advanced type that may be kept aloft for a long time, under favorable flying conditions. It is expected the glider will be taken up into the Blue Ridge Mountains in the summer, where it will be put to flight every week-end when the weather is favorable.

Two Ancient Tricks Net Swindlers $51

Joseph Stears, 205 D street northwest, told police that he was "flimflammed" out of $26 yesterday by two white men near the Pension Office Park. He said they first engaged him in casual conversation, which eventually led to the suggestion of small bets on "various things." When the session was over Stearns said he came to the realization that he had been "doubleteamed."

Another flim-flamming episode was later reported to police by Kolora Washington, colored, 1217 New York avenue, northwest, who said that while on G street northwest, between Ninth and Tenth, she was mulcted out of $25 by two colored men who worked the time honored "pocketbook trick" on her. Police are seeking both pairs of swindlers on descriptions furnished by their victims.

Store Thief Nets $300.

Christian Experience Held Key to Harmony

Capt. Mountford Delivers First of 3 Sermons in Series.

CAPT. B. FRANK MOUNTFORD.

The first of a series of three sermons on Christian experience by Capt. B. Frank Mountford was delivered yesterday at the Peace Cross of Washington Cathedral. It was also broadcast over station WMAL.

As an illustration of the power of Christian experience, Capt. Mountford drew attention to the life of Paul and used as his text the latter's words, "I am not ashamed, for I know whom I have believed." Paul wrote this sentence at the age of 65 while within full view of the last scenes of an eventful life, Capt. Mountford reminded his congregation.

He defined Christian experience as the experience of Christ's power, the realization that though physically absent, he is spiritually present. "We find," he said, "that the constant realization of the spiritual presence of Christ was the normal experience of the Apostolic Age. This is very noticeable in Paul's writing. The dominating certainty of his life is that Jesus Christ is molding and shaping him, and giving him power to be and to do and to endure. He writes his letters in order that others may share his rich experience."

"There are those," continued Capt. Mountford, "who would brush all this aside and dismiss Paul as a dreamer, a man given to seeing visions and the life; but to do that they must also cast aside as illusory, all the centuries of Christian experience, the present life-giving power of Jesus Christ. All down history, Christian experience has fallen into the same molds as those set out in the Epistles. A sense of sin, restlessness and disharmony has been turned into harmony and peace—through a power coming from a divine source, a sense of the presence of Christ controlling the life.

"To treat all this as the result of autosuggestion, and to deny it any objective ground is to put the course of the world's strongest regenerative influences into a lie. In trying to judge rightly about Christ we are confronted not only with the marvelous figure of the first three Gospels, not only with Paul's lofty Christology and with the gentle estimate of the other New Testament writers, but also with nearly 2,000 years of Christian experience," Capt. Mountford concluded.

Danville Widow Loses Suit in Crossing Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 2.—A jury in Pittsylvania Circuit Court yesterday returned a verdict for the Southern Railway Co., which was sued for $10,000 by the widow of Robert Harris Mills who was struck and killed by a train last May while driving across the tracks.

The plaintiff contended that the engineer of train No. 136 did not blow for the crossing while the defense contended the whistle was blown.

Silver Slump Makes It Poor Man's Metal

New York, Aug. 2 (U.P.).—More than twice as much silver is being sold today throughout the United States as in normal financial times. As the price of the metal declined, the cost of flat silver, as well as decorative pieces, has dropped accordingly.

Since the lure of silver is as potent as ever, millions of homes now display solid silver on the tables—heretofore unattainable treasures. Future generations will inherit an immense quantity of ancestral silver, which today, for the first time in history, is being distributed among practically all classes of society.

Family Wrangle Ends in Shooting

Loudoun Man Is Wounded in Leg; Nephew Sought by Authoriites.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 2.—William E. Beavers, 45, is in the Loudoun County Hospital, Leesburg, with a gunshot wound in the right leg, allegedly inflicted by his nephew, Lester Beavers, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Beavers, of Sterling. The shooting affray occurred at the home of Al Beavers on Friday evening.

According to the statement of Mrs. Al Beavers, an eye-witness, to Sheriff E. S. Adrian, of Loudoun County, William Beavers, who is unmarried and lives with his brother, Al, came to the house in an intoxicated condition and began abusing Lester and others who were present, then went to Mrs. Beavers' car parked in the front of the house and damaged it considerably.

He then left, she said, went to a neighbor's, and returning with a gun which he laid on the porch, renewed his villifications against Lester, who ran him out of the House and told him not to come on the porch. When he attempted to do so, she asserted, Lester picked up his uncle's gun and fired at him, wounding him in the leg. He was brought to the hospital by Mrs. Al Beavers and authorities notified, she said.

HOW TO TELL YOU ARE IN A SUMMER HOTEL.

YOU can look out of any window and be disappointed by the view.

You have to walk a mile over broken bottles for a swim.

The milk is sour.

The bathroom faucets marked "hot" are cold and the ones marked "cold" are hot.

The bathtub plug is missing.

The shower is out of order.

The only unattached girl around the place is cross-eyed and stutters.

COMMISSIONER MULROONEY says crooks must keep out of New York's night clubs, which means that a lot of the proprietors will have to run their places by telephone.

F. C. Hall, the Oklahoma City business man who financed the Post and Gatty flight, is evidently off these fliers. He announces an attempt to beat their record, the attempt to be financed by him and two other airmen employed. He will call the plane "The F. C. Hall of Oklahoma City." Mr. Hall is clearly not a man to lose credit for an exploit more than once.

There's a brilliant idea, there. If it is followed up we may look aloft and see "The Captain Frank Hawks, of San Francisco, Chicago, New York, Paris, London, Berlin, Rome, Constantinople and Warsaw" any day.
